2 CAUCASUS NAZIS IN FULL RETREAT

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Jan. 6 (AP)—The German army was reported in full retreat in the Caucasus today, blowing up bridges and mining roads in a desperate effort to check the surging advance of Russian forces driving hard at its heels.

TOJO TAKES A BOW—With all the stiff formality of a Prussian bow, Premier "The Dagger" Tojo bends from the hips as he receives his orders from Emperor Hirohito . . . orders he probably dictated. This picture helps to explain why U. S. troops in the Pacific refer to the Japs as "honkey men."

BRITISH ROUT NAZIS FROM AFRICAN HILLS

By JOHN W. JARRELL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 6 (INS)—A six-hour series of determined infantry attacks by units of the British First Army brigade have driven Nazi forces from strongly defended hills west of Mateur, with mopping up operations continuing, an Allied spokesman announced today.

U. S. PILOTS RIP SOUSSE DOCKS

CAIRO, Jan. 6 (AP)—Heavy bombers of the United States Army's Ninth Air Force pounded the eastern Tunisian harbor of Sousse again yesterday in a daylight attack without the loss of a plane, an American communique announced today.

"All the bombs fell within the target," the communique said. "Bursts were observed on commercial phosphate and the southern quays."

A British communique, apparently referring to the same attack, said that "hits were scored on quays and buildings" by Allied bombers.

Long-distance fighters, it was reported, shot down a German bomber off Lampedusa Island between Malta and the Tunisian coast. Only one plane was lost in these and other operations.

Again there was "nothing to report" from the British land forces pursuing Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's army in Libya.

Some Commandos, it was disclosed, participated in the operation which began at 4 a. m. Tuesday.

Aerial support, including fighters and "Hurri-bombers" (British Hurricane fighting craft equipped with bombs), was most effective throughout the assault on the hills north and south of the road from which German guns had commanded the British position, the spokesman said.

Northern flank infantrymen who stormed the heights of one commanding hill clung stubbornly to their new positions in the face of two German counter-attacks.

Meanwhile, American air forces carried out two bombing attacks Tuesday, striking with success at Sfax and Kariouan.

Flying Fortresses escorted by Lightning Interceptors raided the power station at Sfax, leaving it aflame. Hits also were reported on or near a cruiser which was leaving the harbor at the time of the raid, and the American fliers scored direct hits on two other vessels in the large, fired dock area.

B-20 Marauders, escorted by Lightnings, attacked Kariouan for the third successive day, setting large fires.

The RAF on Tuesday reported shooting down five Nazi planes with a loss of one British ship.

Red Star, organ of the Soviet army, said Russian forces, which already had stormed and won the important towns of Mozdok, Nalchik, Prokhladnenski, Kotlyarevskaya and Maiskoye, continued their sweeping advance along a wide front, winning back a large number of additional towns.

The entire province of North Osetia, between Ordzhonikidze and Nalchik, had been won back by Soviet forces operating along the west bank of the Terek river, while other Russian troops rolled the Germans back to the north, Red Star asserted.

HITLER FEARS FOR ROSTOV

To the north, along the lower Don, the Russians were reported fighting forward after overrunning the important Nazi bridgehead town of Tsimiryansk, thus driving a second spearhead within 125 miles of Rostov, whose fall might doom the entire German force in the Caucasus.

The first spearhead was thrust southwest of Kamensk to a point 100 miles northwest of the great Don mouth port of Rostov.

Reuters, British news agency, estimated in London more than a half-million of Hitler's finest troops were in full retreat in the Caucasus and the Middle Don.

The London Evening Standard, according to International News Service, reported from Stockholm that Hitler has ordered every available German soldier to "return to the defense of Rostov." The Fuehrer was quoted as saying the city is in "gravest danger."

Red Star said the main line of German fortifications at the eastern end of the Caucasus front was shattered Monday when the Russians stormed Nalchik and occupied the city after a terrific street battle.

CAPTURE OIL RAILWAY

Soviet troops were said to have pursued the Germans northward from this sector across a western branch of the Terek river. In a 12-mile final thrust yesterday, Red Star said, the Russians captured Prokhladnenski, 30 miles northeast of Nalchik.

Prokhladnenski is the juncture where the trunk line Caucasus railroad from Rostov to the Baku oil fields meets a branch line running south to Ordzhonikidze.

Berlin Denies Russians Capture Velikie Luki

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts, Jan. 6 (AP))—The German high command today asserted "heavy defensive fighting continued with unabated fury in the Don area." It said Russian attacks were repulsed and the Red army suffered heavy losses, including 56 tanks.

"Enemy attacks against Velikie Luki and southeast of Lake Ilmen were repulsed," the communique added.

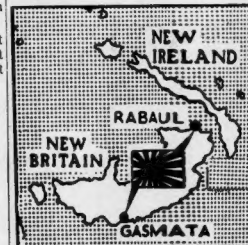

The Russians had announced capture of Velikie Luki Friday.

RUSSIA—Red army troops roll on toward Rostov from the north and south by capturing Nalchik (1), Prokhladnenski (2) and Morozovskaya (3). The entire province of North Osetia, between Ordzhonikidze and Nalchik, has been overrun by Soviet troops.

TUNISIA—British troops, attacking 20 miles southwest of Bizerte, assisted by Commandos and paratroops, drive Germans from strategic hills and are now mopping up. U. S. Flying Fortresses score hits on or near enemy cruiser in Sfax harbor.

NEW BRITAIN—American bombers smash at the Jap naval base at Rabaul, sinking or setting afire ten enemy vessels, and shooting down at least six Jap fighter planes which attempted to intercept.

SMASH 10 JAP SHIPS

MELBOURNE, Jan. 6 (AP)—Heavy bombers of the Allied air forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command have smashed again at massed enemy shipping in Rabaul harbor, leaving eight vessels afire or sinking and destroying a ninth with a direct hit by a half-ton bomb, it was officially announced today.

Probably a 10th vessel was destroyed, an Allied headquarters communique reported on the heels of warnings that the Japanese were gathering a new war fleet in the southwest Pacific.

One bomber was reported lost on the flight but six Japanese planes were downed.

The communique also noted anew bombings of Lae, Salamaua and Madang, in northeastern New Guinea; Gasmata, an island in southern New Britain, and on Timor Island, northwest of Australia.

One air force unit also pounded the Japanese ground forces holding the spit of beach at Sanananda.

3 SIOUX'S STORY OF KILLING 10 NAZIS

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

WITH U. S. FORCES IN TUNISIA, Jan. 6 (AP)—The leading scorer in the race by Commando-trained American soldiers to see who can kill the most Germans is a young South Dakota lumbermill worker of Sioux Indian descent, who has 10 notches on his Garand rifle—and whose big worry is that he may be bitten by an African centipede.

Sergeant Kenneth Scissons of Rapid City, S. D., now is engaged in patrol work in what he calls the "sissy size" Tunisian hills, and he's doing as good a job as could his trailwise Indian granddaddy.

His record string was chalked up in less than four minutes during a sortie by British-trained units near Bizerte last month.

This daring engagement behind enemy lines was one of the bloodiest in which American troops, trained in the hit-and-run tactics of the British Commandos, have yet participated.

Scissons is quarter Indian, quarter English and half Norwegian.

Before dawn, he and others of his unit were on the coast so close to Bizerte they could make out the airport.

HAD TO TRAP Foe

After reaching their objective following an all-night 15-mile march, Scissons and some others were ambushed by the Germans.

"They pinned us down with tommy-gun fire from a ridge," said the sergeant. "I told our leader our only chance would be for some of us to go around the hill and clean them out. I volunteered to take my subsection."

"The only way to get up was to follow the creek bed for 150 yards, but we had to run through open country to reach it. I didn't stop to look behind but when we reached the creek bed only five of our original 12 were left."

"We got halfway up when we ran into more tommy-gun fire and lost another man. We thought the best plan was for two of us to make a break for safety while the others protected with covering fire as well as possible."

GRENADES BLAST NAZIS

"Guy Wright of Henryetta, Okla., and I stayed behind when our other two fellows started back down the hill, hitting the ground about every 10 feet like jackrabbits. Some Arabs, or Germans dressed like Arabs, shouted and began pointing. Hidden German soldiers then rose up to fire."

"That was the first good glimpse of them we got and we really went to town on them. Wright, whose buddy had been killed only a few minutes before, threw a hand grenade at the nearest German. It landed at his feet and he went in a dozen different directions at once."

"I had begun to clear off our section of the ridge. It was like popping off squirrels, only I was never able to get anything near that many squirrels at one time."

DR. LOWELL, 87, DIES, LONG HARVARD HEAD

Dr. Abbott Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University and one of the foremost intellectuals of America, died at 5 p. m. today at his home, 171 Marlboro st., Back Bay.

He had been in failing health for a long time, but ill only for 10 days. He was in his 87th year.

Death came quietly and peacefully to the man who had charted the course for a quarter of a century of one of the world's leading educational institutions.

His three closest relatives are nephews—George Putnam, Roger L. Putnam and Augustus L. Putnam.

Dr. Lowell was elected to the presidency of Harvard in 1909, succeeding Dr. Charles W. Eliot, father of the "Eliot five-foot shelf." At that time the Cambridge institution had 3800 students and endowments of $22,716,000.

HOW HARVARD GREW

When Dr. Lowell resigned in 1932, to become president-emeritus after a career marked by brilliant success and educational achievement, there were 8000 students at Harvard and an endowment of $123,415,000. It was the largest of any university in the country.

During the nearly quarter of a century he directed Harvard's curriculum, he introduced many revolutionary changes in the science of education.

One of the more outstanding changes was the adoption of the tutorial system, patterned after the British plan, which resulted in the cloistered study under the "house plan," and greatly enriched the academic atmosphere of the university.

FURTHERED EXCHANGE

In keeping with his life-long custom, Dr. Lowell declined all newspaper interviews, although thousands in this country and abroad would have been keenly interested in reading his views on domestic and international affairs.

As Harvard's 24th president, he was honored by many nations.

"Lowell House," one of the seven units of the house plan, was named in his honor.

He established the new degree of associate in arts and further developed the system of exchange professorships with foreign institutions.

During his reign as Harvard's president he was dubbed the "Prophet of Back Bay" and was considered a powerful influence in the shaping of public opinion.

A leading figure in the opposition to the child labor amendment, he denounced it as depriving parents of the right to control their children and as a challenge to religious freedom guaranteed by the constitution.

During World War I, he was chairman of the executive committee of the League to Enforce Peace, in which ex-President Taft was a prominent figure.

FOUGHT COURT PLAN

In 1933, as chairman of the Motion Picture Research Council, he led the drive to raise the standards of motion pictures, which he declared to be a great weapon, either for the good or evil of the country.

His verbal blast at President Roosevelt's Supreme Court plan

Even as the Washington report was received, Supt. of Schools Arthur L. Gould dismissed all classes at Boston English High School for the day, instructing the 2400 boys to return tomorrow.

There was no fuel oil at the school but the superintendent said enough will be delivered to permit classes tomorrow. He was unable, he said, to anticipate the situation at other schools tomorrow.

Usually well informed sources said the petroleum administration is preparing an order denying oil to churches, schools and amusement places in the New York area and that the order possibly would apply to other badly hit sections of the nation.

MAY CONVERT

This drastic action will be taken, according to the source, because heavy oil saved by conversion of nearly 3000 of the largest heating plants in the Eastern Seaboard area during 11 months meets only three-fifths of the conversion goal.

Under the threatened order, buildings deprived of oil will have a choice of converting to coal, stretching out their present supply of oil by opening only a few hours a week, or closing altogether until warmer weather.

The information said officials are concerned because school authorities on the eastern seaboard have given small favor to proposals to close schools in February instead of June.

As the drastic order impended and there loomed a recommendation from oil men that "A" gasoline coupons be eliminated and "B" and "C" coupon values reduced, state oil conservation, public welfare and civilian defense officials went forward with plans for evacuating families from heatless homes to coal-burning public buildings.

PSYCHIATRY'S AID TO GROVE VICTIMS LESSON FOR RAIDS

The great strides made by psychiatrists in easing the mental tortures suffered by Cocoanut Grove disaster survivors is described in this article, the third of a series dealing with mental aspects of the holocaust.

By PAULINE WARREN

That psychiatry was probably instrumental in restoring a great many victims of the Cocoanut Grove fire to a normal mental state, almost immediately upon their physical recovery, is evident from even the briefest study of all the records kept by the many psychiatrists at the various hospitals which were crowded with victims immediately after the tragedy.

The psychiatrists in London did similar work in that city during the air raids with equally marvelous success and it now seems possible that psychiatry, which, up to now, has more or less, been considered a toy to rid the rich of psychoses, has proven its real worth in disasters likely to upset the mental equilibrium of a large section of our population.

EXHAUSTIVE STUDIES

Dr. H. Houston Merritt, Dr. Raymond Adams and Dr. Alexandra Adler of the Boston City Hospital, who conducted one of the most exhaustive psychological studies on the disaster, failed to find one single case which needs further treatment. It is possible, of course, that there may be later kick-backs but that contingency does not seem too likely at the moment.

In the following case histories, garnered from various hospitals, you will note that most of them indicate an undisturbed mental state. And each of these was selected because it is absolutely typical.

Take the following. It is the case history of a girl, single, around 22 years old.

"Patient says she does not like to remember accident because it was like a nightmare. Remembers clearly all of the events of the afternoon and evening before the fire. She was with a party of four. They went to Latin Quarter which

Parents Held In Baby's Death

Charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of one of their twin babies on New Year's Day, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Lee of East Second st., South Boston, pleaded not guilty in South Boston District Court before Judge Leo Leary today.

They were held in $2500 each for hearing Jan. 13 and were committed to jail.

Lee and his wife were arrested following an autopsy by Medical Examiner Dr. William J. Brickley, who reported the baby died of "exposure and starvation."

The baby was found dead in his crib on the evening of Jan. 1, when Lee, a defense worker, returned home. The other twin was treated at Boston City Hospital.

LEGISLATURE OPENS SESSION, PLEDGES AID TO WAR EFFORT

Pledging complete co-operation with the federal government in the nation's drive to victory, the 153d session of the Great and General Court of Massachusetts opened today with a minimum of ceremony and an atmosphere of war consciousness.

The first war legislature elected since 1913 was expected to complete its business in one of the shortest sessions in recent years.

The House convened at 11:15 a. m., after a short delay, while Democrats went into caucus to choose their minority party leader.

Rep. Michael J. Neville of Cambridge was elected Democratic floor leader by a vote of 62-22 over Rep. John E. Powers of South Boston during the 30-minute caucus. Rep. Charles A. Kelley of Worcester, presided at the caucus.

WILLIS, FLOOR CHIEF

Rep. Frederick B. Willis of Saugus was named Republican floor leader after the only opponent mentioned, Rep. Peter J. Gordon of Revere, seconded his nomination.

Named permanent Republican caucus chairman was Rep. W. Eben Ramsdell of Winchester, with Rep. Margaret L. Spear of Newton, designated permanent clerk.

Lawrence R. Grove of Boston and Charles O. Holt of Medford were re-elected to the posts of House clerk and sergeant-at-arms, respectively.

Two absentees were reported when the Senate convened at 11:15 a. m., with an attendance of 38. Gov. Saltonstall noted the absence of Sen. Chester A. Dolan, Democrat, Boston, with the Army in North Africa, and Sen. Donald A. MacDonald, Republican, West Springfield, confined to his home by illness.

HUNT SENATE HEAD

Sen. Joseph P. Francis of Fairhaven, was expected to be chosen Republican floor leader of the Senate.

Sen. Jarvis P. Hunt of North Attleboro was retained as Senate president as organization got under way following the administration of oaths by Governor Saltonstall.

The House, by a wide margin, chose as Speaker Rep. Rudolph F. King of Millis to succeed Christian A. Herter, now in Congress.

With election of leaders completed, Rep. John F. Foster, 80, oldest House member and Speaker pro tempore, surrendered the gavel to Speaker King. The Senate was called to order by 67-year-old Cornelius Haley of Rowley, oldest member in that body.

Prayer in the House was offered by the Rev. David Fraser, pastor of West Somerville Congregational Church and former chaplain of the New Hampshire House of Representatives.

SEEK MORE REVENUE

Finding new revenue sources to replace those lost through gasoline restrictions and reduced income from horse and dog tracks was expected to be one of the most important tasks confronting the 1943 legislature.

Tax receipts fell off sharply following gasoline rationing and a rubber conservation program several months ago. Attendance at race tracks was cut by curtailment of special trains and reduced auto traffic.

Sharp controversy was expected to result from the recommendation of a special commission that pari-mutuel betting offices be established as a source of revenue.

Proponents of the measure pointed out such offices would end illegal bookies and horse parlors by channeling all betting through state-authorized agents.

Gov. Saltonstall, in his inaugural address tomorrow, planned to suggest new legislation to correct conditions blamed for the Cocoanut Grove holocaust which claimed 489 lives in Boston's worst disaster.

Senate Pres. Hunt, in a talk with his colleagues, set the theme of the new session with the comment:

"Our primary and most important function must be to do everything possible to bring the war to a speedy and successful conclusion."

SOUNDS WARNING

He added the warning, however, that "in our zeal to preserve democracy, we must not cast aside the democratic processes of our government."

"Careful study and discussion must be given to the problem of protecting the aged, mentally ill and other unfortunates against undue hardships occasioned by rationing."

"We must see that our State and local employees are protected against rising costs and that our essential State services are safe against the lure of jobs which are now giving higher wages."

Hunt called for "careful consideration" of laws aimed at preventing repetition of the Cocoanut Grove fire.

"The enforcement of these laws is not a legislative function, but the adequacy of protection given by these laws is our responsibility," he declared.

BACKS WAR EFFORT

He promised that "Massachusetts will co-operate to the last man, the last dollar and the last morsel of food" in the nation's war effort.

"Yet the federal government must realize that, while Massachusetts is co-operating, it is not yielding any of its powers as a State of these United States," he added.

The Republicans control the House with 143 members, against 97 Democrats. The Senate is also dominated by the Republicans with a membership of 26, compared with 14 Democrats.

Governor Saltonstall will take the oath of office for his third term at 2:30 tomorrow afternoon in a ceremony stripped of many traditional trimmings. No formal invitations have been issued and only military, civil, consular and legislative representatives will attend the inaugural.

London Fearful Of New Congress

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP)—London newspapers displayed anxiety today over the opening of the new Congress in the United States. Headlines read:

Daily Mirror: "Will U. S. Again Become a World Hermit?"

Daily Mail: "Roosevelt's Foes Today Start Congress Battle to Cut Down His Power."

Daily Express: "The Next 60 Days—Don't Lose Faith in America."

Daily Telegraph: "This U. S. Congress Will Strive to Influence Policy-Bias Which Will Challenge Not the War Effort but 'New Deal' Planning."

Eyes of House On Rep. Falvey, WAAC Officer

Natally attired in a snappy WAAC officer's uniform, Somerville Rep. Catherine E. Falvey today stole the women's part of the show at the opening of the House of Representatives on Beacon Hill.

Five other feminine colleagues crowded round the youthful officer who arrived from Washington today to attend the opening exercises. The 234 male members of the House stared, also.

Replacing their husbands, who are in the service of Uncle Sam, were Mrs. Alyce Schlapp of Methuen, wife of Ray F. Schlapp of the Navy, and Mrs. Florence E. Cook of Roxbury, wife of Capt. Milton Cook of the Army, now in the South Pacific.

Mrs. Margaret Spear of Newton, Mrs. Susan Donovan of East Boston and Mrs. Leslie Cutler of Needham comprised the rest of the feminine contingent of legislators.

Miss Falvey was additionally honored when colleagues singled her out for the committee to notify Gov. Saltonstall the House was in readiness.

As the only feminine member of the committee, Miss Falvey waited on the Governor, shook his hand and announced the committee.

Governor Saltonstall smiled, extended his hand and said:

"This is the first time I have had the privilege of shaking hands with an officer of the WAAC."

Miss Falvey returned to the House and took her seat, along with the five other women members.

She announced she would remain in the city for a day or two and then return to Washington and her duties.

"My election came as a distinct surprise," she said. "I shall begin plans to carry on both jobs in a manner commendable to both a WAAC officer and a Massachusetts legislator."

Richard T. Howard, Newspaperman, Dies

City and state newspaper circles are mourning today the death of Richard T. (Dick) Howard, 69, well known publisher of "Who's Who in the Massachusetts Legislature," who died suddenly yesterday at City Hospital.

Dick, who was a member of the staff of the old Boston Journal and covered practically every important beat in the city, had been ill only one day.

Following the death of his wife, Mrs. A. Josephine Howard little more than a year ago, he had made his home with a sister, Mrs. Katherine Keane in Mountain ave., Malden.

Funeral services will be announced later.

House Bills Ask Aid for Servicemen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Servicemen, fiscal reform, poll taxes and lynching were major subjects of legislative proposals introduced today in the House as the 78th Congress officially convened.

More than 150 bills were introduced in advance by re-elected members and tossed into the hopper on opening day so they would receive low numbers. All bills are numbered consecutively on their order of introduction and the total climbs into the thousands before the end of the average session.

Rep. Patman (D.) of Texas had the distinction of offering "House Bill No. 1." It was a proposal for the issuance of non-negotiable bonds to Federal Reserve Banks and to terminate the Treasury's power to issue interest-bearing obligations. It would, Patman said, save untold millions which the government now pays in interest.

A bill embracing the Rumel pay-as-you-go plan for federal income tax collections was offered by Rep. Carlson (R.) of Kansas.

ASKS VOTING AGE SHIFT

A constitutional amendment to lower the voting age from 21 years to 18, the minimum draft age, was proposed by Rep. Fish (R.) of New York.

Bills offered by Reps. Lynch (D.) of New York and Van Zandt (R.) of Pennsylvania would continue the pay of men in the armed forces beyond the end of the war. Lynch proposed continuance of pay for one year after discharge, Van Zandt for six months.

Legislation intended to set up machinery guaranteeing employment to enlisted men after their discharge was introduced by Rep. Keogh (D.) of New York, while from Rep. Heffernan (D.) of New York came a bill to provide free laundry and dry cleaning service to the nation's fighting men.

To help servicemen build up a nest egg for their return to civilian life, Rep. Voorhis (D.) of California proposed Uncle Sam match dollar-for-dollar the savings of enlisted men. The matching would be done with bonds.

TIRE BILL OFFERED

Voorhis also introduced legislation to outlaw employment of "dollar-a-year men" by the government and to require payment of "reasonable" compensation for all of Uncle Sam's workers.

Requirements of many southern states for the payment of poll taxes before a voter may cast a ballot in a primary or a general election involving a federal office would be nullified by bills introduced by Rep. Gavanagh (D.) of New York and Rep. Marcantonio (American Labor) of New York. Gavanagh also introduced the controversial anti-lynching bill which would make lynching punishable as a federal offense.

Legislation to prohibit federal agencies, such as OPA, from requiring periodic inspection and registration of automobile tires was offered by Rep. Manasco (D.) of Alabama, who said the present tire inspection program is "silly."

Repeal of the 1934 silver purchase act was sought in legislation introduced by Rep. Treaway (R.) of Massachusetts.

BUCCIGROSS NEAR TEARS WHILE MAKING GROVE PLEA

Tears welled today in the eyes of Police Capt. Joseph A. Buccigross, last of the 10 Coconut Grove defendants to be arraigned, as he pleaded not guilty in superior court to an indictment charge of neglect of duty in allegedly failing to report improper conditions at the night club.

The police captain, in charge of inspecting entertainment places on the Warren ave. division, was ill at home Monday when the other nine were arraigned and pleaded not guilty.

Represented by Atty. Joseph Scolopetti, the captain rose from the spectators' section when his name was called and, with overcoat over one arm and hat in hand, stood at the rail, in front of the cage.

HELD IN $1000

When asked for a plea, Buccigross replied "Not guilty" in a clear voice but then appeared to be fighting back emotion.

Judge Frank J. Donahue allowed the same bail of $1000 to stand and the police captain, with his counsel left the courtroom, to be greeted in the corridor by several police officers, who shook his hand warmly.

After a brief talk with Probation Officer John Barter, during which he went through the required formality of giving his name, address, age and details of his career, the captain left for home.

Meanwhile Fire Commr. William Arthur Reilly had confirmed reports that he plans to reopen the fire department inquest into the Grove disaster either tomorrow or Friday.

REILLY PROBE TO REOPEN

Resumption of his investigation, Reilly said, awaits only completion of technical reports from chemists, safety and combustion engineers. He expects reports on tests of materials used to furnish and decorate the night club will be submitted to him shortly.

Two Massachusetts Institute of Technology professors, who made a scientific analysis of the Grove ruins after Reilly engaged them as experts, will be among the first witnesses to testify when the fire department's inquest resumes.

Interviews of Grove survivors whose stories have not been heard yet by state investigators continued at state police headquarters today. Many of the witnesses only recently recovered from treatment for burns and shock.

5 Bowlers Die in Chicago Fire, 100 Hurt

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (AP)—Firemen delving into the ruins of a fire-wrecked bowling alley on the far South Side uncovered five bodies today, five hours after the blaze had driven more than 200 patrons into the street, with more than 100 injured.

In the Little Company of Mary Hospital, where 35 victims were taken for treatment, 27 were held all night with at least seven reported in a critical condition.

The fire burned for several hours and damage was estimated by Fire Marshal Anthony Mullaney at $150,000.

Scores of injured, most of them with burns on the face, neck and hands, were treated at nearby first aid stations.

The five bodies were found huddled in the wreckage of a washroom. Marshal Mullaney said escape apparently had been cut off by the flames and the five had sought safety in the washroom, but had been asphyxiated.

Firemen were hampered by ice and temperatures below freezing.

The nearly new, one-story structure was built and equipped at an estimated cost of $250,000 by a syndicate of which Ray Schalk, former Chicago White Sox catching star, was a member. Schalk, however, disposed of his interest a year ago.

MUSKRATS IN COLD STORAGE TO BE SOLD EAST AS 'HARES'

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 6 (AP)—Louisiana muskrats, dressed up for the table as "marsh hares," are being concentrated here in large quantities for shipment to eastern and mid-western states as a delicacy to supplant depleted meat stocks.

State Conservation Commr. Joseph L. McHugh said one buyer who uses the pelts for furs, had 17,000 carcasses dressed for market and frozen in storage plant ready for sale. Others, too, were buying from the trappers.

McHugh said a representative of a national food distributing concern with headquarters in New York arrived this week to negotiate purchases for eastern and midwestern markets.

Louisiana's muskrat catch is about 6,000,000 annually, which figured at a pound a carcass, would provide the equivalent of about 6000 beves.

"Marsh hare," a popular dish in other states, particularly Maryland, McHugh said, may be prepared in any of the many ways that squirrels and rabbits are cooked. The only difference of treatment is that the two muskrat glands inside the thighs must be removed.

The conservation department suggests three muskrat recipes:

1—Boil in water with seasoning

2—Soak overnight in water. Cook in pot with fat bacon until tender. Then season and brown thoroughly in skillet.

3—Boil until meat falls from bones. Make sauce from pot liquor, two hard-boiled eggs chopped fine, butter, flour, salt, pepper, mustard and one gill of sherry. Mix dressing with meat and serve.

BABES FED BY EYE-DROPPER

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Jan. 6—Receiving food a few drops at a time from eye droppers, two tiny "twin" cousins were reported gaining strength today as they lay in incubators at the Woonsocket Hospital.

They are baby girls, each born within a few hours after Sunday midnight, and daughters of sisters from South Bellingham, Mass. The infants weigh 29 ounces each.

The first little cousin is the daughter of Mrs. Leo Beauregard, 20, of Social st., which was born prematurely because of an auto accident. The infant was placed in the hospital's only artificial respirator.

A little later Mrs. Beauregard's sister, Mrs. Emil Vadeboncoeur of Orchard st., South Bellingham, gave birth to the second tiny cousin, also prematurely.

MRS. CLARE BOOTH LUCE
Apologizes to Press

Mrs. Luce Irks Scribes First Day at Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—The office of Rep-elect Mrs. Clare Booth Luce (R.) of Ct., might just as well have been a beauty parlor or a Reno dude ranch in her acid Broadway hit, "The Women."

Piqued over what they considered a "run-around" from the bauteous playwright, author and war correspondent, the ladies of the capital press were in no mood to pull their punches at Mrs. Luce's first press conference.

Mrs. Luce walked into her crowded office, fingering a long scarf, and said, "I'm sorry."

She referred to an anticipated press conference at Union Station on her arrival from Hollywood where she had been engaged in filming a motion picture of present-day China.

"I saw you standing there, but there were important people on the train. I thought you were there to meet them."

The newswomen glared. Why did her secretary hang up the telephone when reporters called for an interview?

Mrs. Luce said she was tired and the train was late.

Bay State Leads In Fat Collections

Massachusetts led all other states on a quota basis, and New England was second among regions, in October collections of kitchen fats, the regional War Production Board disclosed today.

The Bay State achieved 46.6 per cent of its 809,500-pound quota by collecting 377,193 pounds. Massachusetts' women, however, "cannot afford to rest on their oars," Miss Margaret Curtis, chairman of the women's division of the state salvage committee, said, urging a record January collection.

U. S. LOSSES TOTAL 61,126

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—The Office of War Information placed the total American casualties of World War II at 61,126.

In issuing the latest revised list of Americans killed, wounded, missing or interned, OWI based its figure on announcements made by all the services including the Merchant Marine from Dec. 7, 1941, to Jan. 5, 1943. Current figures list 8531 persons as killed, 7389 as wounded, and 42,740 as missing.

In a further breakdown of the casualty list, OWI cited the following figures:

Army: (as of Dec. 20) 2193 killed; 3948 wounded; 29,265 missing; 106 interned in neutral countries; 1016 prisoners of war.

Navy: 4657 dead; 1769 wounded; 8970 missing; 575 prisoners of war.

Marine Corps: 1201 dead; 1635 wounded; 19,943 missing; 769 prisoners of war.

Coast Guards: 51 dead; 19 wounded; 134 missing.

Merchant Marine: 429 dead; none wounded—2428 missing.

The report added that 4226 American civilians are interned in Axis countries. Of this number 2648 are held by the Japanese, 1557 are held in Germany, and 21 by Italians.

was re-echoed throughout the country, likening the President's move to that action of King George III of England which made judges dependent on his will.

Although an enthusiastic supporter of intra-mural sports Dr. Lowell steered away from the slightest hint of over-emphasis on college athletics.

At the age of 80, he passed a test to operate an automobile in Massachusetts but later, when he was injured in an accident, surrendered his license.

BORN IN BOSTON
 Dr. Lowell was born of aristocratic parents in Boston on Dec. 13, 1856. His two grandfathers, who gave their names to two great Massachusetts textile cities—Lawrence and Lowell—were said to have been mainly responsible for the establishment of the cotton industry in New England, and to have brought about the protective tariff.

Dr. Lowell was graduated from Harvard, magna cum laude, in 1877, and entered the practice of law, which he continued for 17 years.

During his legal career he wrote several books dealing with public and corporate law for which he won international recognition.

Dr. Lowell was the recipient of honorary degrees from 28 universities in this country and abroad.

His wife, Anna Parker Lowell, died in 1930. There were no children.

In retirement, he lived quietly in the old Lowell Colonial red-brick mansion in the Back Bay.

Walking was his favorite exercise.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 11 a. m. in Harvard Memorial Church.

Butter Rationing Looms As U. S. Takes 30 P. C.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—America's armed forces and her Allies are going to get 30 per cent of the nation's monthly production of creamery butter and virtually all of the canned citrus juices.

The new government order, effective Feb. 1, is expected to set aside about 510,000,000 pounds of butter this year for war requirements, leaving about 1,190,000 pounds for civilians.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard said last night that the curtailment will permit civilians about 13 pounds of butter each in 1943 as compared with an estimated per capita consumption of 16 pounds last year.

In reserving production of all citrus juices, except concentrated grapefruit juices, for war needs, Wickard declared his order will not materially affect civilian supplies. Large quantities of fresh citrus juices, he explained, are available to civilians as the orange and lemon crops are large and the grapefruit and tangerine crops, now being harvested, are expected to be of record size.

The War Production Board last Nov. 30 directed half of the then available cold storage butter stocks in 35 cities frozen for government needs. The directive earmarked about 18,000,000 pounds, or two weeks supply, for war needs.

Under the new order, about two-thirds of the government's share will go to American military forces and almost all the rest to Russia. Meantime, dairy officials declared that the possibility of rationing butter is being studied. Part of the civilian supply they added, also may be reserved for distribution late in the year when butter production declines.

The butter order applies only to manufacturers making more than 12,000 pounds in any month since January, 1942, but officials said this would affect more than 95 per cent of total production.

President Roosevelt, meanwhile, will inaugurate the 1943 food production campaign in a broadcast

Jan. 12, a date he recently proclaimed as farm mobilization day. The program, the Agriculture Department said, will emphasize the importance of food as a weapon of war.

was very crowded. They left and went to Coconut Grove in Melody Lounge. They went upstairs ready to leave with coats on waiting for their escorts. She was standing by cash register and saw man put all money in bag. She saw one of the boys in her party but not the other one. Her girl friend dashed away toward exit. Patient stood still waiting for the others. The light went out and soon afterwards she passed out in the middle of the dance floor. She saw the flames and inhaled the smoke.

FELT COLD, WET

She does not remember coming to until she arrived at the hospital, except that she does recall lying down in dark, feeling cold and wet, but passed out again. When she finally recovered consciousness she was in a ward being scrubbed and was told that it was 12:30 a. m. She has a vague memory of events on Saturday night and Sunday. She knows that aunt and uncle, minister, the parents of the boy she was with, etc., came to see her. Since then her memory has been clear. She had difficulty in seeing for three or four days because the lids were swollen shut. She lost her voice for about four or five days but it gradually returned. She knows now that all of the other members of her party were killed. She was upset about the news of their death but recovered her emotional equilibrium within a few days. Neurological examination—Normal.

Impression—No evidence of cerebral involvement.

GIRL YELLED FIRE

The next case history is that of a man who received burns on hands and face.

"Was at Coconut Grove with two men, one of them a casual acquaintance who came to see him the next day and who got out without a scratch. Does not know much about the other. They said he is at the M. G. H. A girl started yelling fire, he looked at the fire, then felt nauseated, climbed on a bar, opened a window and dove out. Had felt choked from the smoke and felt that this was the end. When out, he took a taxi to the hospital. He did not sleep very well. Dreamed a few times about the fire, which scared him. This was about two weeks ago. Does not know whether he would go again into a night club. He is well oriented, good at counting, and has perfect memory about recent and remote events."

The next case history is that of an Army officer who is 25 years old.

"Patient has a clear memory of the events before the fire. He remembers trying to escape from one of the exits but lost consciousness before he reached it. He was unconscious for an indefinite period and came to after the firemen had broken in the wall. He helped one of his companions to escape and attempted to re-enter the building to assist others but was prevented from doing so by the smoke.

WALKED INTO HOSPITAL

He was brought to the hospital by ambulance, sitting on the seat, and walked from the accident floor to the ward. He was given an injection of morphine on the accident floor and another injection after reaching the ward. After the second injection he lapsed into sleep and recovered consciousness some hours later after he had been transferred to a private room. He has a clear memory of all of the events that happened since that time, is now oriented as to time, place and person and appears to be in every way mentally normal. On examination his voice is normal and he talks in a quiet manner. He does not appear to be depressed. The neurological examination is within normal limits. There is a ptosis of the right lid which is probably due to edema. He is able to move the arms and legs normally. Strength in the hand cannot be tested on account of bandages. Reflexes are normally active and plantar responses are flexor. No dreams.

Impression: No involvement of the central nervous system.

Another article in this series, giving more case histories of the mental effects of the Grove fire will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

10 JAPS MASS TO RETAKE ALL GUADALCANAL

By RICHARD TREGASKIS

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

GUADALCANAL, Dec. 26 (delayed) (INS)—The battle for Guadalcanal is not yet finished. The Japs who remain on the island—of which even now we hold less than half—are fighting hard. There is every indication that in the near future, within a month perhaps, the Japs will make another attempt to recover the southern anchor of the Solomons.

Today I visited the western front of the U. S. Army lines on Guadalcanal and saw how hard the Japs are fighting their rear-guard holding action to prevent our complete occupation of Guadalcanal.

For a week I have been accompanying Flying Fortresses on strike missions from Guadalcanal and have seen the Japanese airports growing in the Solomons. The Japs now have five airports within striking distance of Guadalcanal—for the obvious purpose of supplying air cover for the next attempt to retake the island.

The picture in summary seems to be that the Japs now realize they have lost out in previous attempts to recapture Guadalcanal because they lacked enough air coverage.

FIGHTING TOUGH THERE

Meanwhile, the Japs on Guadalcanal, who loosely hold all the rest of the island save our strip 30 by 10 miles on the north coast, have evidently been ordered to hang on stubbornly.

Today I traversed the steep ridges of the Guadalcanal interior, and skirted the jungly valleys between, to visit a sector where our forces, under the South Pacific command of Maj.-Gen. Millard F. Harmon, are currently staging a push against the Japs.

At the command post of the Army position, perched on a ridge above jungle, the colonel told us how tough the fighting has been.

He is a hard-looking hombre, with a bristly beard and the white, straight-looking, almost haunted eyes which I find are almost characteristic in men who have been fighting hard.

He said: "The Japs dig in. They have prepared positions. They have logged trenches and machine gun nests that are dug in. When we come in, they fight like hell. We take their positions, but it's a tedious job."

JAPS TOLD TO HANG ON

Evidently the Japs on Guadalcanal have been instructed to fight a holding action until their ships and planes come down from the north in an attempt to bring support.

Although our holdings on Guadalcanal have been expanded, we still have not completed our conquest. True, the strip we now hold is more than 10 times the area we occupied in August. But the Japs still have a large part. And a large base near Visale on the west.

As usual, said the colonel, the Japs in this area are using terrain to excellent advantage. They have well-camouflaged positions in the jungle, places almost impossible to see, and the thickness of the foliage aids them.

YANKS MEET ZERO'S

Yesterday I saw new landing piers, new camps, increasingly-trodden roads at Munda. Today and on the 24th, our planes over the airport ran into numbers of Zeros, taking off from the runway. The new airfield has been built to the stage where planes may now be operated. The holes our bombs cause in the strip are quickly filled in.

When the Jap bombers come and base at Munda, we are going to have a fight on our hands. Work also has been progressing on the Jap airdromes at Kahili, near Buin on Bougainville, at Bal-ale island, off Bougainville's southern tip, and at Buka, off the northern extremity. Runways have been growing longer, revetment areas larger despite harassing bombings.

Our reconnaissance planes have spotted a vast number of Jap warships and transports in Rabaul harbor, and our bombers have attacked them, and the Jap troops on Guadalcanal have been fighting a desperate resisting action.

The fact may not be a pleasant one to face, but indications remain that there will be another hard and desperate fight in the Solomons. We will probably have to win that decisively before the stubborn Japs, whose "face" was so rudely slapped by our Guadalcanal assault, will give up that piece of territory.

THERE'S A LITTLE OLD gentleman who for years has eaten most of his meals with us at one of our cafeterias in the downtown shopping district. I don't know his name or where he comes from, but all of us feel we know him well, for his sprightly manner and twinkling eyes behind his glasses make him a welcome interlude in the busy hours, and his sage philosophy on things in general is indeed a priceless thing to hear.

• The other evening I happened to be standing almost directly behind him just as he was turning away from our serving counter, carrying a heaped-up tray on which was one of our fine supper specials. Looking up, his face wreathed with that cheery smile of his. We found a table together.

• "Hello, Mr. Curry," he piped, in his high-pitched voice, "How's that for a meal for an old man well over eighty? It's my healthy appetite that keeps me young!"

• "You know, I've been noticing something in these restaurants of yours," he went on to say, as he started in on his supper. "I see more families in here eating than ever before . . . men, women and the children. They seem to like the fact that you offer them such a lot of different choices, and I notice how much fun the youngsters have in selecting their desserts from the display on the counters.

• "Yep, they are a fine looking crowd of folks. These dining rooms are fast becoming real homey places. Guess they like to come where they don't have to think of sugar rationing, coffee coupons and all the other inflictions the war has brought on housekeeping. begun to canvass private dwellings in a share-the-house move to care for less fortunate families left without fuel—supplementing the use of public buildings.

Many householders—principally those dependent upon day-to-day supplies of kerosene for heat—already are shivering in their homes and Boston police today were deluged with appeals for anywhere from two to five gallons—though kerosene supplies again have reached the bottom of the barrel.

Those appealing to North End police station at the entrance to Summer tunnel received quick sympathy, because the station itself was heatless and the officers worked with overcoats and galoshes on.

When one prisoner in a cell complained bitterly of the cold, the officers' only solution was to send out and get him hot soup.

The station is in the tunnel administration building, which also houses, as other separate units, the Boston Traffic Commission and the municipal heating plant.

Oil Shortage Sends Church Into Homes

WARREN POINT, N. J., Jan. 6 (INS)—Because of the fuel oil shortage, the Rev. Dr. William T. Stuchell, pastor of the Presbyterian church, announced today all meetings and worship except church school and Sunday morning services would be held in homes of congregation members.

three units is in the printing plant and heat from there likewise supplies the tunnel guards' booths. But today the oil supply was so low that the heat would be switched from one unit to another, without any of them getting much of it.

Girls in the traffic commission were working in sweaters and coats and there was a possibility that both the printing plant and the traffic commission offices would be closed today until more oil can be secured.

At their police stations, principally in the North and South Ends, Roxbury, South Boston, Dorchester, and Mattapan, police cruiser cars were sent to oil loading platforms but found there that the truckers were unable to get kerosene.

Two women brought doctors' certificates into Roxbury Crossing station and officers finally managed to scrape up a little kerosene for them.

But in most instances all that could be done was to advise the persons appealing to communicate with the Committee on Public Safety or the welfare department.

With the continued intense cold—the mercury was at 8 this morning in Boston and close to zero in many suburbs—precious stocks of the little available fuel oil were dwindling at an alarming rate. The weather bureau's gloomy forecast was for continued cold tonight.

STATE OFFERS AID

In another move toward saving oil Gov. Saltonstall today requested all cities and towns in the State to render financial aid to welfare relief families in converting ranges from oil to coal.

He said the State will shoulder its proper share of the cost and emphasized that State Welfare Comm. Arthur G. Rotch recently urged municipalities to "actively assist all recipients in converting."

The Governor's request sent to all mayors and selectmen, stressed that a conversion program is already working out successfully in Boston, where 5000 families are being provided with grates for their ranges.

Fall River, with more than half of its population using kerosene in kitchen ranges for heat and cooking, immediately fell in line with the plan.

At the same time, former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald proposed in a telegram to Massachusetts members of Congress that funds be appropriated to give financial aid to all owners of oil ranges or burners, who need help in converting their equipment.

STOCKS AT NEW LOW

Throughout the state, Red Cross and civilian defense officials were preparing today to care for hundreds of families who may be forced to leave their homes, as a result of a warning by Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, state conservator, that oil stocks are at a new low point.

In view of Col. Sullivan's warning, Gov. Saltonstall asked civilian defense executives and municipal officials to prepare for wholesale evacuations at a moment's notice.

J. Wells Farley, State defense director, heads of various State agencies and Red Cross officials held a five-hour emergency conference and mapped out a shelter program for refugees from the cold.

Today, thousands of Red Cross coats, blankets, food and medical supplies are held in readiness to be rushed to any school or church where evacuees may be taken.

"We are ready," Farley declared. "Anyone who seeks aid will be taken care of. We won't evacuate anybody until they ask help first."

He added that "it's nonsense for anyone in responsible positions to try to evade the fact that we are confronted with a very serious situation."

3-POINT PROGRAM

The State's three-point program of aid to evacuated families includes (1) shelter in heated buildings; (2) making medical services and Red Cross help available; and (3) arrangements by welfare agencies and the Red Cross to handle food for refugees.

So desperate is Boston's plight that Mayor Tobin rushed to Washington to see as many officials as possible in an effort to rush oil to this area.

Equally scarce is bunker oil, used in war plants and large-type furnaces. The shortage caused B. U. officials to plan the halting of College of Business Administration classes after night school tomorrow.

President Daniel L. Marsh of B. U. announced that mid-year exams for 2000 students of the business school would be cancelled and the students given "average credits" and the new $1,500,000 Hayden Memorial building closed for the period to conserve fuel.

Prior to leaving for the Capitol, Mayor Tobin called a special meeting of the school committee to consider shifting pupils from oil-heated schools to others which have been converted for coal-burning.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOL HIT

Rev. Damien Sano, O. F. M., assistant pastor of St. Leonard's Church, North End, appealed to Tobin for help in maintaining classes in the St. Anthony parochial school, housing 650 students on North Bennet st.

Fuel supplies were nearly exhausted and none in sight the pastor said. Mayor Tobin was considering shifting of public school pupils from either the Paul Revere or Hancock School to the Christopher Columbus School, and turning the vacated premises over to the parish.

"There are no more reserves on hand," Col. Sullivan stated, warning the Governor and public that oil now here in tank cars will last only through today.

"We are dependent entirely on tank cars," Sullivan said, "which are insufficient to meet our daily demands and are subject to delay due to weather and defective equipment."

"We had been promised an extra shipment, which will not arrive before the latter part of the week, and which will only partly meet the deficit."

"We are presenting the facts to the Petroleum Administrator for War, Harold L. Ickes, in Washington, in an endeavor to increase shipments immediately."

Discussing the shortage in Washington, Petroleum Administrator Ickes said major pipeline deliveries into eastern seaboard states were running at a record high of more than 160,000 barrels daily, but cautioned this would not alleviate present shortage because it was counted in forecasting supply.

Ickes revealed that oil has been started moving through the 531-mile pipeline from Texas to Illinois, but said it will be at least Feb. 1 before the pipeline is completed.

Ickes said the line-filling operation was begun New Year's Eve, but actual delivery of the first oil at the Norris City, Ill., terminal awaits repair of a section crossing the Mississippi river, which was washed out by flood waters.

Household Gas Saving Urged

Household gas is the latest fuel threatened with a shortage in Greater Boston and today the Boston Consolidated Gas Co., Arlington Gas Light Co. and Old Colony Gas Co. of East Braintree offered the following gas-saving suggestions:

1—Most important of all, do not use your cooking range for heating, but only for cooking. It is impossible to provide enough gas for space-heating through cooking ranges.

2—Cook complete meals on one burner. Turn the burner down when boiling starts. Avoid baking and broiling whenever possible.

3—Cut your use of hot water in half. Never turn on a hot water faucet unless hot water is essential.

4—If you heat with gas, keep your thermostat at 65 degrees, and lower at night. Live in as few rooms as possible, and shut off the heat in the unused rooms. If your central heating plant is not gas fired, don't use radiant or auxiliary gas heaters.

28 ORDAINED AT CATHEDRAL

With the Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, auxiliary bishop of Boston, officiating, 28 young men were ordained priests today at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. Relatives, friends and the faculty of St. John's Seminary, Brighton, attended the solemn ceremony.

The class was one which ordinarily would have had its ordination next May but because 50 priests from the diocese have gone with the armed forces as chaplains, the ordination date was advanced.

Nazis Want Greek Guerrillas Crushed

ANKARA, Turkey, Jan. 6 (AP)—A well-authenticated report from Greece today said the Germans had threatened to intervene there unless Italian occupying troops crush Greek guerrillas who are menacing Axis communications in Greece.

The German threat allegedly was made at an Athens conference between Germans and Italians.

"The Germans were about 150 yards away, except for the one Wright picked off with his grenade. The whole thing was over in less than four minutes and you know they never even scratched our decoys.

YANKS BATTER MANDALAY

NEW DELHI, Jan. 6 (AP)—A large formation of heavy United States bombers raided railroad yards at Mandalay in Burma Monday, dropping bombs on a concentration of freight cars and other railroad equipment and starting large fires, a communique from United States headquarters said today.

Smoke columns from the railroad yard fire could be seen 70 miles away, the communique reported.

The same day railroad installations at Naba Junction, Burma, were attacked by medium bombers, and the communique said "a high percentage of hits were claimed among a concentration of rolling stock, including a locomotive." A small railroad bridge was destroyed.

On Jan. 2, medium U. S. bombers scored direct hits on runways of the Japanese air base at Monywa, 50 miles west of Mandalay, and many others in the airfield's dispersal area.

How to Make a Splendid Cough Syrup at Home

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of plain syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup. Then get from your druggist 3 1/2 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It makes a real saving for you, because it gives you about four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it. This is actually a surprisingly effective, quick-acting cough medicine. Promptly, you feel it taking hold. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membrane and makes breathing easy. You've never seen anything better for prompt and pleasing results. Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, a most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

GLAMOROUS ANN CLARKE is keeping her girlish figure without swearing off sodas and sun-dae. She has taken a job as messenger in a big insurance company and figures she walks about three miles a day carrying important documents and delivering inter-office messages.

This exercise, in addition to dancing with her beaux when they get home for an occasional furlough, helps this lovely Chestnut Hill post deb keep the slim figure which has made her so much in demand as a model at charity fashion shows.

Like so many other society girls whose patriotism has led them into the ranks of working girls, Ann is very enthusiastic about her job. She is making steadfast friends among her new business associates and enjoys the independence of having her own pay check.

If the Vincent Club carries out the suggestion of arranging evening rehearsals for the spring musical, Ann hopes to be able to take part in the show and fit the rehearsals in with her working schedule. She's only one of many purposeful Vincentites engaged full time in business and war relief activities. The Vincent show has a worthy purpose behind it, the support of Vincent Memorial Hospital, so it will be important that as many girls as possible do their bit to make the 1943 show a hit.

Already teams of debbs are at work selling advertisements to fill the pages of the program book and rehearsals will be under way next month.

MRS. JOHN L. GRANDIN is co-operating with her daughter, Isabella, and Leslie Chase, chairman of the Northfield League of Boston, in opening her beautiful house on the Fenway for a tea and meeting of the League Friday afternoon.

Guests will include for the most part sub-debs and members of the top classes at Boston's fashionable schools who will be eligible to attend the Northfield Religious conference next June. Dr. Edwin Booth of B. U. will tell the girls of the significance of the conference. Also attending will be a number of vacationing college girls who could not otherwise take in the winter teas held by the League.

THE BEN P. P. MOSELEYS outwitted the weather man and got back to town just ahead of the snow and cold. They've been enjoying a long fall and holiday season at their hilltop estate in Ipswich and are now settled at 327 Commonwealth.

According to Ellen, their tall, attractive daughter, "the house seems very quiet with all three of the boys in service." Passersby GLAMOROUS Ann Clarke has a practical and patriotic way of keeping fit these days. She walks three miles a day in her for-the-duration job as messenger for an insurance company.

EVERYONE LOVES a bargain— from the society matron with a fat check book to the working girl who has to pinch her pennies. The other day a large number of the former group was encountered bargain hunting at an after-holiday mark-down sale in a swanky uptown shop.

Nancy Cassels Dexter was on the hunt for a "good little black wool suit" and paraded each one she tried on out to a big triple mirror where her mother waited to help her select the most becoming. Nancy, incidentally, is wearing a nifty new upsy hair-do with a black velvet bow perched above her bangs.

A bonnet to wear in her more frivolous off-duty moments was the object of Jean Gordon's search through the bargains. Jean is one of the busiest of Red Cross Nurses' Aides and occupies most of her time recruiting new volunteers for the course.

Love

And Marriage Parents Often Too Strict

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DO YOU THINK it absurd that the world still contains a certain number of parents who never were young?

What else is one to think of fathers and mothers who seem to know nothing of the spirit of youth and who deny their children all natural recreation, imprisoning them in the miserable and dreary thing that they have made of home.

You may have supposed that all youth is untrammelled nowadays, and that in so free an age as ours, the last thing we need worry about is excessive parental severity.

Not a week passes that I do not receive anguished letters from unhappy children of such joy-killing parents. An innocent little 16-year-old wrote me the other day:

"Our Dad is different from all people that ever lived. He thinks all fun is wrong and foolish. He won't even allow us to go to a movie with our friends. I have one sister of 19, and we'd like to enjoy life a little, but how can we make Dad understand?"

THEY MUST PLAY

The trouble is that dads of that order do not understand until an over-repressed child breaks loose and in a way that the parent finds highly distasteful. Can it be his own fault, when daughter elopes, or the sons run away from home before they have finished school, and break all ties immediately? What father will admit it's his fault.

I hope you understand that I'm not pleading for lax, neglected homes, where boys and girls follow their own most reckless impulses, restrained by no wise parental authority.

On the contrary, I believe that parents can scarcely supervise too carefully the occupations and amusements of their young sons and daughters. All I am suggesting is that young creatures cannot grow and develop healthfully, deprived of every opportunity for play. Parents have their choice. They can permit natural legitimate recreation, or they can face the explosion that sooner or later is bound to come.

THE DEEP SOUTH INVADERS SPRING FASHIONS FOR 1943

By BETTIMA BEDWELL

THE Deep South of southern romances has invaded the first spring fashions for the whole country, and you'll find its picturesque and romantic influence on both dresses and blouses in the best shops.

Tina Leser is the designer who started off this expedition from the South. Her patterned materials show the iron grillwork of New Orleans, the roses and magnolias of the South, and other sentimental flora from that land of sun. She uses the lace ruffles from the shirt of the Dixie dandy of other days to ornament shirtwaists for the girls of 1943. And so on.

A blouse from this designer, inspired by the Deep South, is sketched. Made of sheer white cotton, with eyellet embroidered ruffles and black ribbon threading at the neck and wrists, this model has hand-painted flowers, bows, knots and notes of music at the front. It is shown with a black shantung skirt.

Fashion

PERHAPS it's because they have a certain charm and dignity that the short-skirted evening skirts don't seem to attain . . . floor-length gowns are holding their own . . . as the holiday turn-outs proved. The dinner dress, with its look of cover-up and elegance, seemed to set off handsome uniforms best at private parties or those out on the town. Roberta designed this one, with black velvet bodice, short sleeves, and peasant lacing . . . pink slipper satin for the romantically bouffant long skirts.—ANNICE BRINK.

SHOULD HE TAKE HER A PRESENT?

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: When attending a girl's birthday party, should a young man take a present, and if he should, what do you suggest?

It's a gallant gesture for a young man to send the girl a corsage to arrive at her home on the afternoon of the birthday party, or to take the corsage with him. Or he may bring her a box of candy, or a book, or some handkerchiefs, or some sheet music or phonograph records.

Minerals Needed

Serve Liver Often

By MARTHA LEE

TO MAKE SURE that our diet contains all the nutrients necessary for good health, certain foods are essential in our daily menus. In general, these are the "protective foods," so called because they guard against deficiencies which may lead to ill health.

Foods rich in minerals are especially valuable. Milk, for its calcium to form bones and teeth, and liver for its iron and copper, needed for good blood, are among these protective foods, along with vegetables and fruits which supply vitamins. Liver is also a fine source of vitamin A, needed for the proper functioning of the eyes.

The homemaker who plans meals with the health of the family in mind will endeavor to serve liver at least once a week. To avoid monotony, it can be served in a variety of tempting ways. A liver ring, flavored with catsup, is one of these delicious dishes.

LIVER RING

1 1/2 lbs. liver 1/2 tsp. marjoram
2 slices bacon 1 1/4 cups liquid
1 medium onion 1 cup cracker
1 tsp. salt crumbs
1/2 tsp. pepper 1/2 cup catsup

Wash liver in cold water. Cook slowly five minutes in water to cover. Reserve liquid. Put liver through food chopper with bacon and onion. Add all other ingredients except the catsup. Tomato juice, milk, bouillon or the liquid in which the liver was cooked may be used for moisture. Mix thoroughly. Pour the catsup into a well-greased 8-inch ring mold. Pack the meat mixture over the catsup. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 1 hour.

LIVER WITH ONIONS

5 slices bacon 2 1/2 cups thinly
3 cups boiling sliced onions
water 1 1/2 tsp. salt

1 lb. liver, 1/2 tsp. pepper sliced thin 1/2 cup hot
Seasoned flour water

Fry bacon until crisp in a skillet, then drain on paper toweling, leaving the bacon fat in the skillet. Pour the 3 cups boiling water over liver, drain and dry. Dredge with seasoned flour and saute in hot bacon fat until lightly browned on all sides. Lay in greased or oiled 1 1/2-quart casserole. Cover with onions. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and add the hot water. Crumble crisp bacon on top. Cover and bake in a moderate oven of 350 deg. F. for 40 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

LIVER LOAF

1/2 lb. fat salt 2 beaten eggs
pork 1 tbsp. minced
1 lb. liver raw onion
1 1/2 cups hot 1 tsp. poultry water seasoning
1 cup cracker Salt and pepper
crumbs to taste

Fry pork; remove from pan; add liver, and brown on both sides. Put pork and liver through food chopper, using coarse blade. Pour water over cracker crumbs; combine meat, cracker mixture, eggs, onion and seasonings. Place in greased baking dish. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 40 minutes. Serve hot or cold. Makes 6 servings.

16 DEB ON JOB AS MECHANIC

No. 1 Bud of '40 Made Bow at $12,000 Party

WAAC-to-Be—Two pictures and a story are here to tell you about the war ambitions of Margaret Cushing Goodhue, who made her bow to society at a $12,000 party and was named the No. 1 debutante of 1940. She's learning the job of motor mechanic to qualify for a WAAC post.

By ALICE BISSELL

What's this? Incredible, yes, but true? And just one more example of the wondrous side of war. We happened to be strolling through an Ipswich st. garage today. There were a lot of men hammering away at cars, when suddenly from underneath a truck up popped a blonde girl.

She wore men's clothes, her hands were black with grease, but through all the smudges and dirt her pretty face was either Margaret Cushing Goodhue's, the No. 1 deb of the 1940 season, or a reasonable fac-simile thereof.

"Oh boy! What I've learned in seven days! I can grease a truck," she said, bubbling over with enthusiasm.

"I can clean spark plugs! Put distributor wires on them!"

"Oh, and a truck came in and we drained the crank case and I filled it with eight quarts of oil. They gave me a ratchet wrench!"

"I can put batteries on a line to be charged! I can test batteries! I can wash cars!"

This was no debutante drawl.

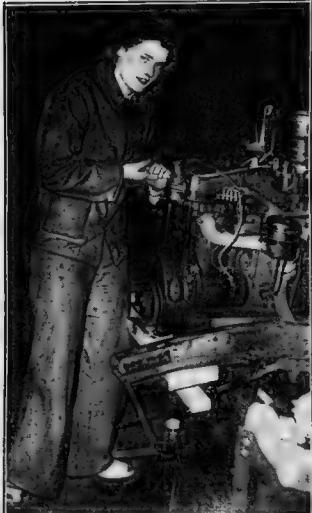

But sure enough, the girl who graduated from Miss Winsor's School and "come out" at a $12,000 party in a pink satin gown and pink-tinted and parted it for a year, was there before us . . . the first and only girl enrolled in the National Youth Administration Motor Mechanics Course.

The debutante is really off to war. She's even resigned from the Junior League and Vincent Club, and the mechanics course is just a stepping stone for her to the WAACS.

"I am determined to be a WAAC," she said.

"I want to get into the Motor Transport Corps and want to get ahead quickly so that they'll send me overseas. This training should help me."

A student at Bennington College now, she is spending her six weeks' period for field work at the WAAC workshop punching a time clock at 8 a. m. and again at 4:30 in the afternoon.

A New England Bloc

THE weather just won't behave according to the specifications arbitrarily laid down for it last Summer by the Washington bureaucrats who seemed to think all they had to do was sing "June in January" and that happy state of affairs would result.

Because January insists of being January, the supply of fuel in our New England oil tanks is dropping as low as the fires in our boilers, thousands of persons are experiencing actual suffering, schools and factories are closing, and civilian defense authorities in West Roxbury and other districts are hastily planning to evacuate freezing women and children into the homes of neighbors who still enjoy the blessings of heat.

If any executive in a private corporation were responsible for such a mess as Federal officials have allowed the fuel oil distribution system to become, he would be summarily removed and his prospects of obtaining another job would be as dark as an air raid warden's windows.

But the bureaucrats in Washington are not removed, and their muddling and bungling continue.

Why, therefore, do not our New England Senators and Representatives get busy now and organize a solid bloc that will work together, stand together and vote together for the welfare of the six important States they were elected to represent?

Why don't they make the formation of this bloc a "must" item of business with the new Congress?

If New England had the protection of a victory bloc of this kind six months ago, its people would be spared at least 50 per cent of their current food and fuel worries.

CHILDREN'S LIVES should always be protected, in war time as much as any other time.

The Cambridge School Committee is therefore to be commended for its vote to open schools a half-hour later because of dangers to pupils starting off in the early morning darkness.

When we advocated such a procedure last week, after receiving many letters from mothers of children attending suburban schools, it was with knowledge that transportation facilities in some communities is a problem to be overcome.

In some cities and towns where school buses are used for transportation of war plant workers it may be found impossible at this late date to make the change. But where it can be done it should be done, for a month of dark mornings remains.

If the war carries us into another Winter, school boards will do well to make plans in advance to open school sessions at an hour when children will not be required to travel storm-bound roadways in darkness.

ATHLETES' LONGEVITY is a widely and heatedly debated subject. Thousands say participation in sports extends life. Others argue that it has the opposite effect.

Yesterday's newspapers carried the obituaries of three leading figures in the sports world—William H. "Big Bill" Edwards, one-time Princeton football star, who died at 66; Richard A. Lonergan, hero of more than 700 rescues in his 30 years as lifeguard at beaches in Florida and Massachusetts, who died at 58, and Evan Hollister, the former Harvard half-miler, who died at 68.

None of these men attained the Biblical "three score and ten," despite the fact that each was gifted in youth with extraordinary endurance and a better-than-average set of muscles.

Meanwhile, many a person who never did anything harder than chasing a street car or taking the family dog for a walk, is hale and hearty at the age of 90.

Perhaps the late Chauncy De Pew was giving us the wisdom of rich experience when, on his 80th birthday, he observed: "I get my exercise acting as pallbearer for those misguided fellows who take exercise."

LAX PARENTS who spare the rod will do so henceforth at the risk of criminal indictment in Beckley, W. Va.

Striking at what he considers the root of juvenile delinquency, Judge Clay S. Crouse of the Southern city says:

"Indictment of parents is the major way of combatting the war-inspired increase in crime among young people. It is a known fact that children of ten years of age have been apprehended in the act of crimes. Who else but parents could be responsible for tots of such tender age?"

If a similar threat hung over the heads of all American fathers and mothers, thousands of "teen-age girls and boys who are running wild at all hours of the night and morning and getting into serious trouble would be conspicuously and understandably absent from their accustomed haunts.

DRAFT-AGE STUDENTS should heed the good advice given to them by President Kenneth C. M. Sills of Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me.

"Stay in school as long as you can," says President Sills. "Don't drop your books and sit idly by until the Army or Navy calls you. It is probable that you may be allowed to complete your next semester."

THE ABOVE is an excerpt from "Sonnets from the Portuguese," the greatest poem ever written in praise of a husband. It is interesting to consider that so great a poem was inspired by married love. This seems to confirm the contention of many that the real love story begins at the altar. . . . Mr. and Mrs. George M. Goben of Panama, Ia., were married for 80 years. This must be the United States record. . . . Jane C. Humphrey of Los Angeles has been the secretary of Lawyer Isadore Dockweiler for 46 years. And if that isn't the record for continuous employment of a secretary and stenographer I will be very much surprised. . . . A San Franciscan says that during 1924 he bet $2 on every horse with a name beginning with Valinda. He claims he made a lot of money by sticking to this quaint system. . . . A New Jersey dog expert claims that horse meat is the favorite meat of all dogs. After that, says he, the dogs like rabbit meat best. When fed to dogs the expert adds both horse meat and rabbit meat should be cooked. The dogs don't like it raw.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS:

Q—So it's hard to win a cigar from you is it? Well, you claim to be a Dodger fan, so I'll bet you a cigar you can't tell me in what years Tim Jordan and Phil Lewis played for the Dodgers and in what positions and where they came from. A—Tim Jordan played first base. Phil Lewis was a shortstop. Don't know where Jordan came from. Lewis was a Cornell graduate. I don't remember what years they played. I guess you have won half a cigar from me. . . . Q—Was there ever a talking dog in vaudeville? Did he really talk or just seem to be talking? A—A canine billed as Dan, the talking dog, appeared at Hammerstein's Victoria in New York years ago. I didn't see this act, but have been told that this pup had a vocabulary of about nine words which could be plainly understood.

MARRIAGE, ETC.:

Am asked what I think of Robert Louis Stevenson's statement: "If they only married when they fell in love most people would die unwed." I believe Mr. Stevenson was wrong in saying that the majority of married people were not in love when they married. It is my understanding that about 47 per cent of women who marry are not what you might call madly in love with their husbands. This is probably due to the fact that all women want to be married, and if they can't marry the man they love they will marry a man they like rather than become an old maid. On the other hand, about 89 per cent of men are really in love when they marry.

INFLATION:

Before World War I, in Germany, 30,000 marks was the equivalent of $6000 in United States money. When inflation came to Germany after the war, 30,000 marks was worth 10 cents. How would you like to spend your life time saving $6000 for your old age and then find it was only worth a thin dime? That's what inflation means. It is surprising how many people do not realize the effect of inflation. The government should begin a campaign to make the matter very clear to everybody.

ASIDES:

The Japs dedicate each year to one of the 12 signs of the Zodiac. 1942 was the year of the horse. 1943 is the year of the goat. But what is most interesting to me is that 1941, when the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, was the year of the snake. World War I cost the United States a total of $26,000,000,000. Now the United States is spending $100,000,000,000 a year on war. Germany is spending about $30,000,000,000 annually and Britain $20,000,000,000 in the same period. The Japs are spending about $3,000,000,000 a year for war. . . . Now I have a reader whose name is Memory. I also have readers named Faith, Hope and Charity. The city of Los Angeles once had three adjoining streets named Faith, Hope and Charity. Only Hope st. remains. The people who lived on Charity st. couldn't stand being ribbed about the name and demanded a change. I don't know why they changed the name of Faith st.

ATTENDS OPENING OF THEATER
WING CANTEN IN N. Y.

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, TUESDAY—Miss Thompson and I rose early yesterday morning in order to reach New York city in time for one or two appointments at my apartment, before we went to the opening of the Theater Wing Canteen for Merchant seamen.

The train was an hour late so we did considerable work on it. However, it made me rather breathless in catching up with appointments and being ready to leave the house at 3:30.

Mr. John Golden and all the wonderful people who are responsible for the American Theater Wing Canteens should be proud of the job which has been done in making this club so attractive. The game room downstairs is one the men will enjoy. The library is a delightful room in which to sit and rest and read.

I went down to the kitchen and saw the volunteers for the day working hard. I envied the men the delicious looking pies and sniffed at the coffee pots, also somewhat covetously.

As we came out, the sailors were beginning to crowd their way in. I feel sure that with the talents which the Theater Wing always provides, there is going to be another of those popular canteens. There is no group more deserving of recognition than the men in the Merchant Marine, who are fighting the war in, perhaps, the most courageous way possible, because there is so little they can do to defend themselves when attacked.

One man told me that he had been at the opening with me of the Glasgow Merchant Seamen's Club, and another said he had sailed out of Glasgow the day I arrived there.

I READ AN ARTICLE the other day which was an evaluation of the Negro press in this country. It seemed to me that the author, Mr. Brown, has done an extraordinarily fair and constructive piece of writing. He differentiated between the various papers, but he pointed out that for the most part, very few of the Negro newspapers are concerned primarily with giving news.

This, I think, is one of their weaknesses, because it means a less well informed reading public and prevents their being considered on a par with other newspapers. There is some very good writing in some of them, but there are also some articles which are regrettable from many points of view.

I LEFT LAST NIGHT on the train for Syracuse, New York. I am speaking at Syracuse University three times during the morning and returning to New York city by an afternoon train.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6—Jack Topping's romance with pretty Betty Stewart is a good bet to wind up at the altar. He's given her a ring that weighs a pound. . . . Washington insiders are confident that pay-as-you-go income tax plan will go through well in advance of March 15. . . . The Edmund O'Briens (Nancy Kelly) may reconcile. He sent her a dozen orchids and a case of champagne when she opened in "Flare Path". . . . Groucho Marx is whispering his gags into dancer Judy Cook's receptive ear. . . . Paul V. McNutt will offer John Steelman the post of executive director of manpower. Steelman, chief of the labor conciliation service, once turned down the job. . . . Benny Davis' new club on Broadway—on the site of the old Beachcomber—will be called "The Frolics". . . . Georgie Tapps, the dancer, and Janice Wallace, of the Riobamba chorus, are sniffing orange blossoms. . . . Government censorship of Hollywood films caused so much controversy that the censorship restrictions have been let down. The government no longer asks to see all scripts in advance of production.

THE CARLTON PALMERS (she was Toni Johnson) are knitting tiny garments. . . . There was quite a scene at a New Year's Eve party because a glittering foreign film star and her foreign beau stayed seated and chatted all through the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner." An Englishwoman, in no uncertain terms, advised them to stand up and shut up. . . . Actress Constance Collier is responsible for the idea of starting the American Theater Wing's Merchant Seamen's Club—for which she deserves a bouquet. . . . Those who know the story attribute Navy's victory in the Army-Navy game to one thing: The most unusual "fight talk" ever given to a football team. . . . Just before the game, the squad was read a still unpublished list of Navy heroes who have been killed in action in the Pacific. Many of the dead were former friends of the players.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

THAT, OH, SO, STRANGE SHOW-BUSINESS! The nearest thing to a tour de force used by Sheila Barrett in her repertory at the Copley Plaza is the acting vignette she calls her "refugee bit". . . . The characterization is that of an entertainer selling war bonds, and in the four-minute sketch, Sheila impersonates successively a Southern gal, a clubwoman, and a little old French woman without much money, but happy about being in America. . . . Handled a bit less skilfully than its treatment by Miss Barrett, the thing could grate on tender nerves—so closely does it veer to the edge of the old hokum and the cornfields. . . . But La (Wonderful) Barrett gets away with it. . . . More, she makes it a touching and effective rendition. . . . Some might criticize it as a semi-classic.

WELL, THIS BIT NEEDS a good audience to be superbly effective. . . . It has met, nevertheless, with success at all times, and its degree of success is all that has varied. . . . Miss Barrett was in fine form, and the supper-show incident we are about to describe (briefly) happened. . . . A gentleman was waiting for Sheila when she made her exit from the Plaza's raised dance floor-stage. . . . He shyly pressed a slip of paper in her hand, and the goggle-eyed Sheila—not much of a hand at placing importance in numerals—saw a string of zeros preceded by the numeral "one". . . . It read—altogether—10,000. . . . And a dollar sign was prefixed in the proper place. . . . "Just a token of my appreciation, Miss Barrett," the gentleman said mildly. . . . "I have made it out to the hotel, but I hope you will take the time to see that $10,000 in war bonds is bought with the check at your convenience."

THE NAME SIGNED TO THE CHECK belongs to a Watertown man. . . . Except that one of his names is Dana (and not the last one) we are protecting his identity as he didn't want any publicity. . . . But he was affected by Sheila's touching interpretation of a tired little old French woman without much money but happy about being in America. . . . In fact, there were tears in his eyes when he wrote out the check. . . . That it about all. . . . Except that the check didn't bounce, and has been transferred duly into Uncle Sam's coffers. . . . And—postscript: The "refugee bit" almost hadn't been played that $10,000 night. . . . The boss of the room liked Sheila and her act. . . . All but the scene in which she takes off an entente-casualty selling bond.

EDDIE LOWE, HERO of the greatest motion picture based on World War I entertained the boys at Ft. Devens last night. . . . He will give a repeat performance tonight. . . . The star of "What Price Glory" is husky and handsome but hasn't been able to make the grade with the induction medics. . . . He is doing the best he can, under the circumstances and is traveling as part of a show headlined by Blackstone, the magician, on a tour of New England camps. . . . From his hotel in Worcester, Mr. Lowe confirmed the Hollywood bulletin that, finding the proper play, he will return to Broadway which started him on a glamorous and high-paying career before the footlights and cameras. . . . "I have just played before the best audience an actor ever worked for," said Eddie, quite breathlessly. . . . "When these kids come home from their war jobs, there should be some ready-made audiences for the legitimate theater. . . . Many of them are getting a first taste of bigtime showbusiness in the various camps of the country." . . . And that is a new angle on the war as it influences the business of entertainment.

BOB AND BERTIE HELLMAN have been brought back to the beautiful Music Box, and with Adrian Rollini

SHEILA BARRETT
Impersonation Pays Off

still holding forth from the Music Box's supper-room stage, John Costello's place can boast two "bests". . . . The Hellmans admittedly are the best man-and-woman piano team in the business. . . . And even Rollini's rivals haven't disputed his advertised claim "the best little band on the air". . . . Incidentally, a lovely thing named Shirl Thomas has made so many fans at the same Music Box that a going-away party probably will be formed to see her off for Miami, and a previous booking, Saturday.

OVERSEAS ASSIGNMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6—Teresa Wright, who looked so delicate the last time I saw her, is much better. So well, in fact, she will be given the top role in "North Star," Samuel Goldwyn's $1,000,000 Russian epic. The name comes from a town in the Ukraine and it is Lillian Hellman's first original. Sam tells me it will not be the story of a lot of guerrilla warfare but a true picture of the youth of Russia and of present day conditions obtained after much research work on Miss Hellman's part.

Walter Brennan and a cast of 1000 players—and I mean that literally as well as figuratively—have been lined up by Director Lewis Milestone. The Naval Aid Auxiliary girls are all grateful to Sam for his wonderful gesture in lending Teresa Wright to Sol Lesser for "Stage Door Canteen." The more names we get the better the financial returns for the American Theater Wing, Hollywood Canteen and the N. A. A. will be.

MARLENE DIETRICH the East Jan. 22 on an Army camp trip they will consult Sen. A. B. "Happy" Chandler in Washington to see if he could do something about getting them transportation overseas. Over the holidays the new boxoffice champs settled their differences with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and have agreed to report there early in March for a yet unselected movie.

THE LORETTA YOUNG-TOM LEWIS marriage seems to be working out very well. I see them so often at the Church of the Good Shepherd and sometimes little Judy, Loretta's small daughter, is with them. Judy seems as devoted to Maj. Tom as she is to her beautiful mother. Loretta is one of the pets on the Columbia lot this year and so delighted was Harry Cohn with "A Night to Remember" that he has just bought "If the Shroud Fits," a comedy by Kelly Ross, in which Loretta and Brian Aherne will again be teamed as a married pair. Richard Wallace, who directed "A Night to Remember" will see if he can repeat on this second movie.

MARLENE DIETRICH is lingering on in New York, awaiting word about her musical and all of the many things necessary for her to put her name on a contract. While she is in the East she is seen everywhere with Jean Gabin. I was interested to hear that Marlene had been approached by a foreign producer who wants to star her in a modernized version of "Lady of Desires." Before Marlene became known as an American star she made this dramatic story for a German company under the title "Die Frau Nach Der Man Sich Sehnt." That, of course, was long before we were at war.

ONE OF MY FRIENDS in Mexico City writes that when Errol Flynn was there he was attentive to the most beautiful, dark-eyed Mexican girl she had ever seen. Not once did Errol appear publicly with Ann Sheridan and never once did they attend the same parties, and there were many given at the Christmas season. At the big bull fight of the year the bull was dedicated to Ann—an honor all the girls covet. La Sheridan is expected back in Hollywood and may arrive by the time this is printed. She has been living at the Reforma, the hotel at which we were guests when we were in Mexico on the John Hay Whitney good will party.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Sid Luft flew in from Texas to spend a few hours with his heart, Lynn Bari; Frank Perrett of the 20th Century-Fox publicity, and Mrs. Perrett, have welcomed their third son; Al Newman and Mary Lou Dix are seeing each other again after six months' separation and it may be a reconciliation; Anna Lee, English actress, has been seriously ill with a strep throat; Virginia Hawks, so often Charlie Chaplin's dinner companion, at Slapsie Maxies with Jimmy Ritz; Kenneth McKenna, M-G-M's able story editor, has enlisted in the Signal Corps; the Bob Hopes and their two children have been spending the week at Arrowhead and as soon as Bob heard of the Bing Crosby fire he telephoned and offered him their house; Gene Tierney writes from Ft. Riley that she will stay there with Oleg Cassini until the studio calls her; Lloyd Pantages has been made a sergeant and his friends are very proud of him;

'Stand By for Action,' Stays 2d Week on Loew's Screens

Film Thriller Story of Navy

Metro's arresting Navy film, "Stand By For Action," which has a slick, solid story as well as the attention-getting teaming of Brian Donlevy, Robert Taylor and Charles Laughton, is remaining a second week on Loew's twin screens.

And no wonder, for here is entertainment that is on the beam, and guaranteed to stimulate our pride in America's magnificent Navy. From start to finish, "Stand By For Action" is absorbing and genuinely thrilling.

The story, in the best of the Navy traditions, has been directed with the greatest skill by Robert Z. Leonard, and the performances are excellent throughout.

In lauding the Donley-Taylor-Laughton triumvirate, it is only right and just that particular mention is made of native-son Walter Brennan's brilliant if brief impersonation of a gallant, modest chief yeoman.

The script by George Druce, John L. Balderston and Herman

"Stand By For Action"

J. Mankiewicz is based on an original story by Capt. Harvey Haislip, U. S. N., and R. C. Sherr.

Also holding over is "The McGuerins from Brooklyn," the companion picture, which features Max Baer, William Bendix, Arline Judge, Marjorie Woodworth, Joe Sawyer and Grace Bradley.

Delay 'Follies' Opening Here

Owing to the tremendous undertaking involved in producing a show of the size and extent of "Ziegfeld Follies" which stars Milton Berle, Ilona Massey and Arthur Treacher, word came from New York yesterday that it would be necessary to postpone the opening until Wednesday, Jan. 20.

It was thought wise to make the change at this time rather than wait until the company came to Boston to begin its final rehearsals.

A slight change in price policy was announced yesterday. The evening prices for orchestra seats will be $3.85 for Monday to Thursday evenings, inclusive; and $4.40 and $3.85 for the orchestra for Friday and Saturday evenings as well as the premiere performance.

Matinee prices remain the same, namely: Wednesday, $2.20 for orchestra seats and Saturday matinee, $2.75.

Edmund Lowe In Camp Show

Edmund Lowe, screen and stage star, is appearing with Blackstone, the celebrated magician, and his large supporting company, and with Columbia's starlet, Ann Savage, today and tomorrow at Fort Devens. The USO-Camp Shows production are due to entertain the boys at the Naval Air Station, Quonset, R. I., on Friday, and Camp Endicott, Providence, on Saturday.

Best remembered for his co-starring role with Victor McLaglen in "What Price Glory," Lowe has been seen on the screen more recently in "Dinner At Eight," "I Love You Again," "Call Out The Marines" and "Double Date."

DOROTHY LAMOUR's well-known allure puts no restraint on the shenanigans indulged in by Bing Crosby and Bob Hope in "The Road To Morocco," due for a run at the Esquire Theater on Friday.

HENRY

WE HAVE TO BECOME KORDIES TO GET OUT OF HERE? WHAT IS A KORDIE?

YOU MUST PRETEND TO BECOME KORDIES. I'M NOT SURE WHAT A KORDIE IS. MY BROTHER TAKES NORMAL MEN AND WOMEN--AND BY FORCING THEM TO DRINK SOME MIXTURE--TURNS THEM INTO KORDIES.

WHETHER THEY ARE LIVING OR DEAD, I DO NOT KNOW. THEY CANNOT FEEL--THEY NEVER SEEM TO SLEEP. THEY ARE HARMLESS--BUT HELPLESS.

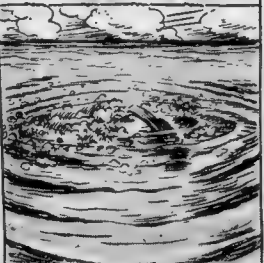

I MUST GO NOW. THAT "WATER" MY BROTHER LEFT YOU WAS INTENDED TO MAKE KORDIES OUT OF YOU. YOU MUST PRETEND -

WITH THE BOYS HELPLESSLY IMPRISONED INSIDE THE FLUNKEY TAXICAB, THE DRIVERLESS VEHICLE PLUNGES FROM THE PIER INTO THE WATER.

SILENTLY, THE CAB SINKS BENEATH THE WAVES.

BUT FROM THE OPEN TRUNK EMERGE THE TWO PATROLMEN. DESPERATELY THEY SWIM TOWARD THE SURFACE--

I--I STILL CAN'T BELIEVE WE'RE SAVED TIM! THOSE FOREIGN AGENTS MUST'VE USED THE BACK TRUNK TO HIDE ON RIVETT THE TIME WE CHASED THAT CAB. IT TOOK YOU TO LIFT THE REAR SEAT AND FIND IT WITH THE TRUNK LOCK, UNLOCKED!

JUST CHALK IT UP TO TIM TYLER'S LUCK!

THE STONES IN THE QUEEN'S STOLEN CROWN ARE WORTH TEN MILLION, BILL! THEY'RE TOO HOT TO BE GOOD TO JEWEL THIEVES... MUST BE ANOTHER MOTIVE BEHIND THE THEFT

WHAT ABOUT THE WAX IN THE HEE-PRINT, X-9?

OUR LAB FOUND IT WAS DANCE FLOOR WAX! THE SUSPECT MIGHT BE A JITTER-BUG OR AN EMPLOYEE OF A DANCE HALL... WE'LL HAVE ANOTHER TALK WITH THE QUEEN!

WE'VE GOT WHAT MIGHT TURN OUT TO BE A VALUABLE LEAD! I WONDER IF YOU'D MIND LETTING US EXAMINE ALL THE SHOES IN THE HOUSE?

IT'S JUST A ROUTINE HEEL INSPECTION, YOUR MAJESTY!

BUTON, ASK ALL THE MEMBERS OF THE HOUSEHOLD TO REPORT HERE WITH THEIR SHOES! THE DETECTIVES ARE SEARCHING FOR A HEEL!

YOU READY TO GIVE UP, MOOLA?--CONGRATULATE TOR! YOU THE NEW CHIEF!

MOOLA LINTS THE BUNDLE AND WITH THE GREATEST OF EASE BREAKS EACH STICK INDIVIDUALLY.

SHE NO CAN DO THIS TO ME! IS CHEAP TRICK!

IT SEEMS TO ME THAT MOOLA'S METHOD HAS BEEN USED BY MANY GREAT CHIEFS WHO DEFEATED THEIR ENEMIES! THE TRICK IS CALLED DIVIDE AND CONQUER!

TOMORROW: THE SECOND TEST.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME

POP REALLY WENT ALL-OUT FOR THE LITTLE BLONDE IN THE ALL-OUT DRESS AT THE OFFICE PARTY LAST WEEK.

BASEBALL SEEN DUCKING VITAL ROLE IN WAR AID

By BOB CONSIDINE

Army Bouts at Camp Edwards

THE AMERICAN KIDS who will win the war will win every world's professional boxing championship within two years of the time peace is declared. This becomes more evident each day as the flower of the youth of the country enters the various branches of service.

MAJ. LAHOURCADE

Those persons who have been deferred in the draft and who are still young in most cases have little time for athletics.

The Army, Navy, Marines and Air Corps are each month devoting more attention to boxing. Competition and proper training will result in the development of thousands of boxers.

Camp Edwards is leading the way for the Army units of the United States. Maj. Lahourcade, Capt. Lane and Lieut. Nkyio of the 36th Division have developed one of the strongest boxing teams of any service unit. The soldier boxers will reach the high spot of their winter tournament tomorrow night at Camp Edwards when a monster show will be staged.

Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion of the world; Tony Shucco, North End heavyweight, and Andy Callahan of Lawrence are among the professional boxers at Camp Edwards. Mandell and Shucco have helped condition the boxers who will toss punches tomorrow night.

Boxing is well organized at Camp Edwards. There are regular boxing drills two hours a day several times during the week. This has enabled the Army boxers to get into condition and also to improve in their boxing.

Gen. Fred L. Walker of the 36th Division recognizes the value of boxing in the matter of physical condition and in morale. He has given the boxing program his full support, and he will be at the ringside to see the action tomorrow night.

Army Boxers Are Paired for Ring Bouts

THERE IS A FINE array of boxers ready to sweep into action. In the 126-pound class, George MacLean, 111th Engineers, will oppose Sidney Johnson, Division Artillery. In the semifinal the winner will take on Robert Keillogg, 36th Division Quartermaster Corps.

There will be two semi-finals and a final in the 135-pound class. In the semi-finals, Eddie Reed, Divisional Artillery, will take on Walter O'Brien, 143d Infantry, while Tommy Courtwright, 143d Infantry, will collide with Cheechie Martin, 11th Engineers.

The 147-pound final will find Johnny Zeleznoek, 142d Infantry, swapping blows with Carl Schlegel, 155th Field Artillery.

There will be bouts in the 160 pound class for novices as well as in the open division. The novice final will feature Johnny Tadaka, 36th Division Headquarters Company, against Tony Campo of the same unit. The open bout will bring together Paddy McNamara, 142d Infantry, and Johnny Dalupo, 143d Infantry. This bout will be the final of the show, and it is expected to be jammed with thrills.

George Cortez, 111th Engineers, will meet an opponent to be selected today in the 118-pound class.

The heavyweight bout should furnish plenty of action with David Pennington, 36th Division Quartermaster Corps, and Tommy McGonigal, 143d Infantry, tossing punches.

Will Invite Army Boxers to Compete Here

GENE DRISCOLL, chairman of the boxing committee of the New England A. A. U., will attend the show as the guest of the Army. Gene has co-operated with various New England service units in staging their shows.

George Freeman of the Irish American A. A. will also attend tomorrow night's bouts. He will tender the winners of the Army tournament an invitation to compete in an Irish American A. A. inter-city show at the Arena Jan. 24.

Louis to Become Dad Late This Month

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (INS)—Sergt. Joe Louis will become a father the latter part of this month, his wife, Mrs. Marva Trotter Louis, revealed in Chicago last night.

The world's heavyweight boxing champion "is tickled about his prospective fatherhood and doesn't care whether it's a boy or a girl," Mrs. Louis said.

Louis, on leave from Ft. Riley, Kan., spent Christmas in Chicago and is now in Detroit visiting his ill mother.

Kenesaw Mountain labored and begot a mouse. If what the Czar imposed on big league baseball at the Chicago meeting is the extent of the government's baseball rationing demands, then he should have been put off the train en route to Washington to make way for more essential travelers.

As matters now stand, baseball has heroically agreed to start its 1943 season one week later than usual and run one week longer. You can bet your "C" card that that sacrifice will long be remembered in the annals of the country, and bring Hitler and that Jap bum to their knees in short order.

RELIEF TO OWNERS

Of course, the clubs accepted a government suggestion that they train closer to home. That will work no hardship. For a number of them it will be a relief from a heavy expense, made largely in the interests of a free publicity which will be given just as readily as before.

But all clubs, of course, gave the impression of contributing something valiant to the war effort by acquiescing in a matter in which they had no choice.

It seemed to me before the meeting, and it still does, that baseball could have done itself and the country a good turn by offering more than the government asked, instead of grudgingly "accepting" what turned out to be the mildest kind of restrictions.

There isn't any doubt that some owners will even make capital of the medicated changes in the game by hammering down salaries, slashing rosters and establishing more synthetic double-headers under the guise of patriotically saving transportation uses.

Baseball would not have been hurt one whit, financially, if Landis, after all that preliminary fanfare, had grabbed the vests of the hedging owners at the meeting and commanded them to shoot the works.

For instance a shorter season would have saved countless thousands of miles of travel (and cost), and whetted the appetites of fans. The owners also should have been forced by Landis to admit more service men to games, and not take away their seats on the good days; set up war bond booths and campaigns, provide games and "personal appearances" at service camps, play more charity games, etc.

Instead, the game took its "green light" without even a "thank you." It is verily the luckiest business in America today, and it's a pity that Landis didn't make it appreciate that fact a little more.

Teams in Scramble

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (INS)—Those of the major league clubs which have not selected their spring training camps were in a mad scramble for sites today following their agreement to train as close to home as possible.

The Chicago Cubs and White Sox will go to French Lick, Ind., while the Boston Red Sox have picked the scholastic atmosphere of Tufts.

Cincinnati, Washington, the St. Louis Browns and the St. Louis Cardinals still have to make their selection.

Detroit was expected to go to Evansville, Ind. The Cleveland Indians have been eyeing Dayton and Springfield, O. Connie Mack said the Athletics probably would train at home with maybe a warm-up at Wilmington, Del.

The Dodgers will go to Yale, unless the Army beats them there. The Giants will remain in their own territory. The Pittsburgh Pirates were reported scouting around for a nearby spot.

ONCE OVER—All-America Frankie Sinkwich, who led Georgia to a 9-0 win over U. C. L. A. in the Rose Bowl, is sized up as likely material for the armed forces by Pvt. John Anderson of Andover. Both were passengers on an airliner from the coast, taking Sinkwich to Washington where he received the Walter Camp Memorial trophy. Anderson was coming home to Andover on furlough. Sinkwich reports to the Marines in March.

DIMAGGIO DIVORCE MAY BE CALLED OFF

RENO, Nev., Jan. 6 (AP)—Joe DiMaggio's blonde wife, Dorothy, gave the impression that nobody—not even she and Joe—can be sure what the score is right now in regard to their marital estrangement or to the speculation that he might quit baseball to seek enlistment in the armed forces.

"It's always been a woman's prerogative to change her mind," the wife of the New York Yankee centerfielder said.

"Joe'll probably have something to say in a day or two, after he gets back to San Francisco."

Joe Denies Plan To Quit Yanks

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6 (INS)—An apparently innocent remark by Joe DiMaggio about spring training, interpreted in some sports circles as meaning he will retire from baseball during the duration, was explained today by the Yankee slugger as he returned from a Reno visit with his estranged wife.

The remark, "spring training won't concern me this year," was quoted by a San Francisco Examiner sports columnist yesterday and has since had more interpretations than Calvin Coolidge's "I do not choose to run."

DiMaggio called International News Service today to clear up just what he meant by the phrase.

"It was misinterpreted," insisted, baseball's highest salaried player. "We were talking about spring training and I merely said I thought I could get in shape this year in New York as well as in Florida."

"But all that aside, Joe, how about the rumor of your retiring? Anything to it?" he was asked.

"Listen," Joe said. "How can I tell? It would be foolish of me to say anything definite about that now. I'm on a spot, you know that. Hell, I'm due to be reclassified by my draft board whenever, you know."

DOROTHY ARNOLD
I Can Change Mind

Joe was referring to the divorce action brought by his beautiful blonde wife, the former Dorothy Arnold of the screen whom he has been visiting lately ostensibly to attempt a reconciliation.

"It's all out of my hands right now," DiMaggio continued. "What use would it be to say anything about whether I will play this year when the picture could change overnight? It all depends on what happens in the next couple of weeks."

BRIMSEK 2D IN MONTREAL SPORT POLL

Frankie Brimsek is in second place in the Montreal Sport Fan popularity contest, only a few votes behind Buddy O'Connor, Les Canadiens. In the opinion of the same publication, the Boston Olympics have contributed more players to the armed forces than any club in this country or Canada. Tommy Gorman, general manager and publicity demon of the Montreal Forum, is trying to arrange for the old Razzle Dazzle line of the Royals to play a game for Les Canadiens. The Flying Frenchmen have Buddy O'Connor and Gorman is gunning for Pete Morin and Gerry Heffernan.

Eddie Powers is rounding out a club at New Haven. At the start of the season about all that Powers had to work on was good intention. On a recent trip, the Eagles defeated Indianapolis and Cleveland and tied Hershey, proving the former Boston Tiger and Bruin Cub coach hasn't lost any of his cunning. The Detroit Red Wings and the Toronto Maple Leafs will meet for the first time in four weeks on Saturday in the Queen City. Don't forget the American Red Cross will receive the entire receipts from next Tuesday night's Bruins-Blackhawks game. Yank Boyd will not be back in the Bruins' lineup for a week. He's been at home in Toronto with an infected foot.

Gaye Stewart, who is well on his way to receive the best rookie award, expects to be called into the Canadian Navy any day. His departure will be a blow to the Maple Leafs. Ken Lundberg and Clarence Schraider of the Olympics work out mornings with Coach Bill Linsky's Northeastern Huskies. Lundberg hadn't seen any action until he joined the Pics but he's rapidly rounding into condition which is good news for Coach Hago Harrington.

Harvard Six Back in Action

Harvard's hockey team, fresh from a three-week layoff, resumes rink action on Thursday night on Boston Skating Club ice against the B. U. Terriers, whom they decisively licked earlier this winter in an 18 to 2 triumph.

On Saturday evening Coach Johnny Page's sextet engages Princeton at Princeton in its initial entry into Eastern Intercollegiate League competition this season. His high scoring charges will be favored chiefly on the strength of their local showings to date. Already in contests with Tufts, Tech, Northeastern and B. U. they have dented the strings of the opposition nets 54 times.

Coach Page contemplates no change in his regular lineup, with Marc Beebe, Caleb Loring and Bill Harding as forwards; Capt. Johnny Paine and Dick Mechum on the defense and Goodie Harding in the cage.

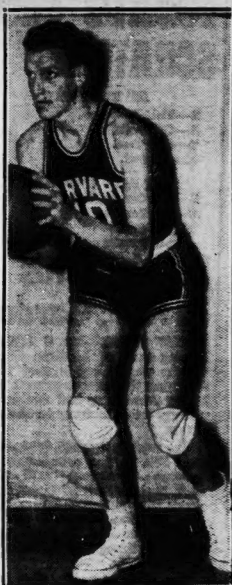

His Jayvees are scheduled to hook up with St. Mark's in a Saturday game out at Southboro.

Braves Go Hunting For Training Camp

While the Braves have yet to announce a spring training site under the new setup to cut down mileage by major league clubs in 1943, it is expected that Tribal officials will start hunting immediately for a college or prep school field house near the Hub.

There is a possibility that officials may seek the use of Case Memorial cage at Andover Academy.

FRANK BIXLER
Impresses Coach Brown

CRIMSON FIVE PLAYS ARMY

Coach Earl Brown intends to shake up his starting basketball lineup in tonight's clash with a service quintet at Camp Edwards in an effort to bring his Harvards back into winning ways after their poor vacation time showing in the West.

His squad was undefeated in five local skirmishes prior to the holidays. And it seemed headed for a fairly successful road trip through the midwestern basketball belt against Rochester, Bradley Tech, Wisconsin, Michigan State and Detroit. Yet the Crimson quintet came up with but one triumph, a close win over Michigan State.

Brown was impressed with the substitute service of both Frank Bixler and Dean Hennessey on the trip, for their shooting eye was very keen within the short time they were in action.

Freshman Mike Fansler is slated to start at a guard position as a replacement for Don Lutze, who sustained an ankle injury against Wisconsin on New Year's Eve. Mike merely moves back from a regular starting assignment as forward.

N. U. Quintet Plays In Durham, N. H.

Resuming competition after a week and a half lay-off, Fox Flumers' Northeastern varsity basketball team was to meet the University of New Hampshire this afternoon in a N. E. Intercollegiate League game at Durham.

Flumers' combination is at its strongest peak since the start of the season with three high-scoring freshmen and two veterans making up the starting quintet.

Honor-Student Tom Phillips of Roxbury, a first year man, will get the starting center post, with the forward positions going to two other freshmen, Russ Washburn and Cookie Gwadosky.

N. H. L. Baffles Kid Players²⁹

By BILL GRIMES

One of the most baffling angles of the National Hockey League is its reserve and negotiation lists. According to the N. H. L., it isn't necessary for an amateur or college player to receive a direct offer for his services to be placed on a club's list. The N. H. L. has ruled any player who has been placed on the negotiation or reserve list must agree to the terms offered by the club which selected him, or be barred from organized hockey.

Hundreds of amateurs have received the shock of their lives when they were informed that they belong to such and such a club and therefore were not eligible to deal with any other organization. For the most part, the Canadians accepted the ruling of the N. H. L. The Americans were not so gullible.

JEREMIAH A VICTIM

Connie Smythe had George Owen, Harvard, and Myles Lane, Dartmouth, on his Toronto list. But, because Smythe's terms were not inviting enough neither wore a Maple Leaf uniform.

Smythe was a smart operator and realized that his claims on Owen and Lane wouldn't hold in a court of law on this side of the border, so he didn't force his hand. But when the Bruins announced they had signed Owen, Smythe went into action and got the equivalent of $35,000 in players and rights on players.

Eddie Jeremiah, who also starred at Dartmouth, was trapped by the New York Americans and wound up in New Haven, with a $1700 contract while at least four N. H. L. clubs battled for his services. "Jerry" foolishly submitted an envelope with his name and address on it when asked by an official of the New York club where the Amerks could contact him. Bill Dwyer convinced Jeremiah that the addressed envelope had evidence that the Americans had negotiated with him.

Danny Sullivan, another Dartmouth captain, is the latest American to refuse to abide by the rulings of the N. H. L.

NOW YOU KNOW

While waiting to be called for a Navy commission last year, Sullivan went to Hershey, Pa., with Johnny Fitzgerald, another former Olympic player. He so impressed Cooney Weiland, manager-coach of Hershey, and Eddie Powers, coach of the New Haven Eagles, that Weiland offered him a contract which the former Dartmouth boy accepted.

Word then came from Frank Calder, N. H. L. chief, that Sullivan was on the Bruins' list. Danny hit the roof and refused to join the Bruins.

Are you still wondering why there are not more Americans playing in the N. H. L.?

Through the Binoculars

By DAVE WILSON

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 6—Through Bound, fleet 3-year-old of Out Bound from the Texas stable of Mrs. A. R. 18th and the champion juvenile of the 1942 New England son, was the victim of a poorly judged ride when beaten past Saturday in the running of the Winter Handicap at Tropical Park.

DAVE WILSON

matte teletimer board in the centerfield, he covered the quarter in 122 and the half in :45 3-5. At the three-eighths mark, he was something like eight full lengths in front of Dispose, who is generally regarded as one of the quickest horses in training.

Oscar L. Foster, brother of Through Bound's trainer, George, pointed out after the race that Lindberg could have restrained the son of Out Bound in front during the first quarter in around :22 3-5 and still had plenty in reserve for the stretch drive to the wire.

Contrary to general belief, O. L. Foster is of the opinion Through Bound will run just as far as horse races go. He points out that Through Bound's sire, Out Bound, was a notorious quitter as a juvenile in abbreviated dashes, but as a 4-year-old he won races up to a mile and a half.

In the meantime, Through Bound's owner is backing up Foster's theory with large chunks of folding money in the form of nomination fees for the Kentucky Derby, Belmont Stakes, Arlington Classic, and all the other important 3-year-old fixtures.

According to the stable's present plans, Through Bound is to pass up the Hialeah Inaugural on Jan. 13 and await the Hialeah Stakes on Jan. 16. The Hialeah is a six-furlong allowance affair, exclusively for 3-year-olds. Through Bound gets into this event favorably burdened under 120 pounds, and Don Brunelle is slated to have the mount.

Incidentally, Through Bound would have been named Davey O'Brien if his owner's wishes had been fulfilled. The name Davey O'Brien, in honor of the T. C. U. football star, was the first one submitted to the Jockey Club, but the New York solons turned it down.

Frank Thomas, the Alabama football coach, is an ardent racing fan, and he is usually included in the crowds at Tropical Park. . . . Frank may usually be found in the paddock in a huddle with Trainer Hack Ross, who was an all-American in his college football days, or Boston's own Moose Shapoff. . . . Lou Walters, who has been in Miami the past few weeks, is leaving for New York today to start work on a new musical. . . . Lou is owner of the Latin Quarter on Palm Island, the swankiest night spot in the Miami area. . . . Benny Gaines, who formerly operated the Mayfair in Boston, is the owner of the Pogo Pogo Club in the Vanderbilt Hotel on Miami Beach. . . . Benny, who has always been a soft touch, is very popular with the boys in the armed forces. . . . Benny admits that he shells out as much as $300 weekly in finis and sawbucks, but says that the boys always pay up. . . . J. P. Pollard, the well-known Boston night club man, who is now a yeoman in the U. S. Navy, is stationed in Miami, and is doing clerical work. He says he enjoys the Navy life. . . . Matty Norton, who handled Garvey Young and other good fighters in Boston, recently received his sergeant's chevrons and has been transferred from Miami Beach to Denver, Col. . . . Uncle Mike Jacobs found the going at Tropical Park a bit rough and has departed for New York, where he is to meet Joe Louis.

Lieut. Frank Murphy of the U. S. Navy, a well-known Boston newspaper man, was a visitor at Tropical Park recently. . . . Pvt. Paul Connors, formerly a member of the sport staff of The Boston American, was in Miami a couple of days last week doing a story on the Orange Bowl game for The Yank.

Football A MUST---ADM. LAND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (INS)—Georgia's Frankie Sinkwich today held the Walter Camp Memorial Trophy which was awarded him by the touchdown club for being the outstanding All-American football player in 1942.

The Touchdown Club also awarded the Knute Rockne Memorial Trophy to Bob Dove, Notre Dame end, as the outstanding 1942 All-American linesman, and honored with a trophy specialist third class Bruce Smith, former Minnesota player who starred at half-back for the Great Lakes Naval Training Station last season.

A special scroll and a cigar store Indian was given to Assistant Coach Turk Edwards, acting for the Washington Redskins, as a salute to the new National Professional Football League champions.

The club also paid high tribute to Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators baseball team and said that it would launch a drive to have him placed in baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission and president of the club, said that the football MUST be continued through the war.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 6 (AP)—Home on her first leave, tiny Kitty Rawls Thompson, former international woman champion swimmer and now a member of the Women's Auxiliary Ferrying Squadron, says that flying with the WAFS "is the most thrilling and exciting life imaginable."

She is one of the original group of 25 women fliers who formed the nucleus of the WAFS.

The attractive WAF, who is married to Capt. Ted Thompson of the Royal Air Force Ferry Command, admitted that she misses her swimming.

"But we've got a job to do," she said, "and my particular one keeps me very busy."

Juggle Cards In N. Y. Garden

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (INS)—Boxing cards at Madison Square Garden were being juggled today following the announcement that Henry Armstrong had decided to undergo a tonsillectomy in the near future.

The news postponed tentatively until Feb. 19, the scheduled bout between Armstrong and Beau Jack, world lightweight champion, which was to have taken place Jan. 29. Also knocked off the card was the Jan. 18 meeting between Armstrong and Al Tribuani, in Philadelphia.

The postponement also gave added importance to Friday night's encounter between Bob Montgomery, Philadelphia lightweight challenger also seeking the crown, and Chester Rico of the Bronx. The winner, under one proposal, may be paired with either Juan Zurita of Los Angeles, Luther "Sluggo" White of Baltimore or Joey Peralta of Tampa, Fla.

Nat Rogers, Garden matchmaker, announced today that he has several plans for filling the Jan. 29 date. Among them is a suggestion for changing the non-title bout between Willie Pep, world featherweight champion, and Allie Stolz of Newark.

Olympics' Defense Bolstered By Another Priestly Brother

The Philadelphia Falcons face a stiff week-end at the Garden on Friday and Saturday evenings if Hago Harrington gets in condition a new defense man he is trying out for the Olympics.

The newcomer is Bob Priestly of Melrose who spent the past fall playing end for the Philadelphia Eagles.

Bob is the third Priestly brother to lace on a skate for the local amateur sextet. He was preceded by Gil and Russ Priestly, all of the famous Melrose athletic family. Brother Russ is also on the present squad.

The Priestly boys, incidentally, are all Army Air Corps members. Gil, 24, is a lieutenant, and is now at Gray Field, Wash., while Bob, 23, and Russ, 20, both have been enrolled as aviation cadets and are

'TU Win Again'

WOOD SEES MORE TITLES

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 6 (AP)—Blond Craig Wood shrugged off his 41 years, minimized a back operation which will keep him away from a golf course for eight months, and talked confidently about winning the first national open championship to be held when peace comes.

The fact that he has been in bed nearly a month because of a recurrent spinal ailment didn't dim his enthusiasm as he explained:

"If the war doesn't last too long, I don't see why I shouldn't win the open again. There won't be any new contenders to worry about at first, and the odds ones I defeated in 1941 aren't getting any better."

Wood is staying in bed now except for occasional trips to an osteopath so that he can get ready for a projected nation-wide exhibition tour with Joe Kirkwood, Sr., for war relief.

Once the tour is over, probably next October, he will undergo an operation for the removal of a vertebrae cushion which chronically slices out of place and forces the duration open champion off his feet until treatments take effect.

Bob played both football and hockey at Brown after leaving Melrose. Upon graduating from Brown he tried his hand at the pro game and proved to be the outstanding grinder for the Eagles this past fall.

AFTER—Hitler's Latest Picture . . . With Defeat Lying Close Ahead

Two Pictures of Hitler

—Taken only a few short months apart, these pictures tell the story of Adolf Hitler: How, in the flush of hoped-for victory, he was a dapper, sleek dictator . . . and now, how defeats in Russia and Africa have changed him . . . his gesture frantic, his jowls marked and flabby. For years, Hitler has been reported suffering from cancer of the throat, but this latest photo seems to indicate he also is afflicted with fatty degeneration.
